Leonhardy is released

GUADALAJARA, Mexico (AP) — "Thank God," said U.S. Consul General Terrance G. Leonhardy when he returned home Monday night and embraced his wife 76 hours after a guerrilla band kidnapped him on a street here.

"I am very happy," the 58-year-old diplomat said. With bloodshot eyes and a heavy, gray stubble on his cheeks and chin, he made a brief appearance for photographers supported by his wife on one side and Jack Higgins of the State Department on the other. But his doctor would not allow him to answer newsmen's questions.

Leonhardy was freed, tired but unharmed, 39 hours after the Mexican government released 30 persons from jail and flew them to Cuba to ransom the American.

"I can only express how happy I am to be free again and reunited with my family and with friends and colleagues, both Mexican and American," he said in a brief statement read to newsmen for him by a spokesman.

"I would also like to say how deeply grateful I am to all those who helped so much, and especially to the Mexican authorities whose constant preoccupation and efforts made my release possible."

There was no immediate word where Leonhardy was held after a group of armed men grabbed him Friday afternoon as he drove home alone.

Mrs. Leonhardy was in the United States at the time, beginning a 10-day visit with friends, but rushed back Saturday and joined the couple's two young daughters.

Panel sees resource crisis near

WASHINGTON (AP) — The controversial theory that resources shortages may actually threaten modern civilization today won official support from a U.S. government agency for the first time.

In the first comprehensive survey of U.S. mineral resources since 1952, the U.S. Geological Survey warned that "not merely (U.S.) affluence, but world civilization" are "jeopardy."

The Geological Survey published a 722-page, item-by-item analysis of U.S. supply and demand in 64 mineral resources and warned that many of them are, or will be, in short supply.

A study prepared at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology two years ago, called "The Limits To Growth," warned that modern civilization would overshoot the world's ability to sustain it, and would collapse unless population growth and industrial production are soon curtailed.

A similar view was expressed by British scientists in a paper called "Blueprint for Survival."

But such ideas have been criticized by others, including public officials, who charged that the gloomy projections were based on inadequate data and shaky assumptions.

The new Geological Survey study, which set itself the task of gauging the adequacy of mineral supplies for the future, thus lends new, and for the first time official, support to the dire warnings of the "Limits" and "Blueprint" studies.

"Careful study of ... the volume in its entirety," wrote editors Donald A. Brobat and Walden P. Pratt, "leads to the conclusion that only a few comin return for his quick public testimony.

Federal prosecutors reportedly have refused to promise Dean that he will not be prosecuted for testimony to the federal grand jury investigating the break-in and bugging of Democratic national headquarters.

This development could lead Dean to remain publicly silent on the affair until after any trial—which could mean months—for fear of possible self-incrimination.

But a grant of immunity before the Senate panel—while it would not guarantee that Dean won't be prosecuted on the basis of evidence offered by others—would allow him to testify publicly in advance of a trial without being prosecuted for his own words.

The Justice Department and Chief U.S. Dist. Judge John J. Sirica must approve any grant of immunity for Senate testimony.

The Dean debate comes after the White House issued a fresh denial in response to news reports that Dean is prepared to say he believes President Nixon knew of a White House coverup of the Watergate affair.

"Any suggestion that the President participated in any coverup activities is untrue," Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren said at the Florida White House Monday.

Also Monday Elliot L. Richardson promised that he would name a special, independent prosecutor in the Watergate case if he is confirmed as attorney general.

Tornadoes hit Midwest; 9 persons hurt

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Severe thunderstorms fanned out from the mid-Mississippi Valley into the Ohio Valley and eastern Gulf states today after walloping the nation's midsection with heavy rain and tornadoes.

Nine persons were injured Monday night when a series of tornadoes churned across southeastern Missouri and Southern Illinois.

Four cars of a freight train were blown from the tracks in Missouri, but there were no serious injuries. Five persons received minor injuries when a mobile home was knocked over near Poplar Bluff, Mo. Two men were hurt near Freeburg, Ill., where five mobile homes and a farm implement company were damaged.

The South Platte River from Denver to the Nebraska line began to recede Monday. The damage estimate from severe flooding over the weekend reached $50 million.

Thunderstorms drenched a wide area from the Mississippi Valley to the Appalachians.

A flash-flood warning was issued for middle Tennessee and a flash-flood watch for parts of Illinois and Wisconsin.

The National Weather Service said the new rains would not pose a serious flooding problem for the Mississippi Valley, where a new crest was expected today at St. Charles, Mo. The rains will delay persons hoping for an early return to their homes.

The Corps of Army Engineers said almost 13 million acres is under water from Missouri to the Gulf of Mexico and the river still is rising from Vicksburg, Miss., south. Up to 39,000 persons have been forced from their homes, and damage has been estimated at $407 million.

Elsewhere, rain and a few thunderstorms splashed into the Pacific Northwest, and showers were scattered from the central Rockies to the Northern Plains. Most temperatures were in the mid 50s or 60s, but frost nipped parts of New England.

Indian militants lay down arms

WOUNDED KNEE, S.D. (AP) — Indian militants holding Wounded Knee were to lay down their weapons today, ending a 70-day siege that claimed the lives of two of the insurgents but accomplished the militants' goal of calling national attention to Indian affairs.

The Feb. 27 takeover of this Pine Ridge Reservation village by militants of the American Indian Movement caught the nation's attention and held it for more than two months.

An agreement to end the armed conflict was signed Sunday by government negotiators, village occupants and traditional headmen and the Oglala Sioux tribe.

The agreement called for a dispossession of arms beginning Wednesday morning. However, government negotiator Richard Hellstern said Monday that AIM leader Dennis Banks and spiritual adviser Leonard Crow Dog requested that the process be moved up to today.

Under terms of the agreement, village occupants are to gather in a central location while all weapons and explosives are taken by Community Relations Service personnel of the Justice Department.

Implicate high-ups in military graft

WASHINGTON (AP) — Four Army enlisted men convicted of bilking military service clubs of hundreds of thousands of dollars today implicated high-ranking officers in a coverup of the activity. In sworn statements given to investigators in advance of a hearing today by the Senate government operations subcommittee, they outline a pattern of command influence that the men say was designed to make service clubs in Germany, Vietnam and Ft. Benning, Ga., turn illegal profits.

The four, including former Sgt. Maj. William O. Wooldridge, had not testified publicly until now about how they stole from slot machine operations and took kickbacks from military suppliers for more than 10 years.

When called to testify before the subcommittee in October 1969 they took the Fifth Amendment against self-incrimination.

All have pleaded guilty in a Los Angeles Federal court to charges of conspiracy to defraud the service clubs. They have yet to be sentenced, pending their agreement to appear today before the subcommittee.

Wooldridge, the first man to ever hold the job of Army Sergeant Major said he used his position to control the transfer of his friends, who in turn were raking off the profits of the service clubs.

Wooldridge said that in Vietnam he came to the aid of two non-commissioned officers arrested for black market currency violations. He said Maj. Gen. John H. Hay, then commander of the U.S. First Division, was persuaded that the two men should not be prosecuted.

The two were allowed to return to the U.S. and retire rather than face courts martial.

Senate investigators quoted Wooldridge as saying there was clear evidence the men were guilty of illicit behavior. One of them, former Sgt. Seymour Lavzar, was convicted with Wooldridge and scheduled to appear with him.

In Germany in 1966, Wooldridge told the investigators, the commander of the 24th Infantry Division, Maj. Gen. William Cunningham, was aware that a percentage of slot machine profits was being stolen by the sergeants who ran the service clubs.

Air Force in wordy 'denial' of plush airplane charges

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — The Air Forces Logistics Command Monday said that contrary to a statement made by Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., a C-135 aircraft was not being remodeled for the personal use logistics command Gen. Jack Catton.

Proxmire Sunday said he had confirmed that Catton ordered the remodeling of the aircraft into a "luxury liner" at a cost to taxpayers of $430,000.

The command issued the following statement:

"Contrary to Senator Proxmire's statement, the aircraft is not being refurbished for Gen. Catton's personal use, nor is it being modified to Air Force One standards."

"A 12-year-old test bed configured C-135 no longer required to support the Air Force Systems Command missile tracking and test mission was assigned last year to Air Force Logistics Command to replace a 20-year-old C-118 mission support aircraft. The C-135 is now being restrengthened and reconfigured to its passenger-carrying mission."

"We do not wish to pre-judge the General Accounting Office report, and will of course cooperate with the GAO, but the rework of the C-135 is cost effective (economical), because it is far cheaper than procuring a new aircraft, will extend this particular old aircraft service life by 9,000 flying hours and will enable AFLC to effectively meet its worldwide mission requirements."

A public information spokesman for the command would not specifically confirm or deny the cost or type of refurbishing Proxmire said was being done.

"At this time all I can say is what is the statement," the spokesman said.

Proxmire said he had confirmed plans to include a refrigerator, self-cleaning range, large tables, soundproofing, reupholstering of chairs and blue carpeting. He added that he asked the GAO to check into information he received that other work included new engines, three bedrooms, a new kitchen, a trash compactor, stereo system, a 14-foot freezer and a bar.

The logistics command is headquartered at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base where the plane is scheduled to arrive sometime this month. Refurbishing began in January at Tinker Air Force Base in Oklahoma.

Disaster plan disclosed

by President

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon asked Congress today to consolidate disaster activities in a single federal agency that would speed aid to victims while forcing the states to assume more responsibility in recovery from floods, earthquakes and other natural catastrophes.

"This bill would place greater emphasis on protecting people and property against the effects of disasters before they occur," Nixon said.

"While we cannot fully control the occurrence and the impact of disasters, we must do all we can to prepare for them, to prevent them, and to mitigate and remedy their effects."

A new electricity habit

Events and portents keep reminding the American public that the era of heedless consumption of energy in this country is rapidly drawing to a close. It will be hard to break the habit of using as much power as we please, but break it we must. The alternative is involuntary curtailment of energy consumption.

A potent new reminder of this comes from Los Angeles. City officials warn that there will have to be "brownouts" — imposed cutoffs of electricity — starting Sept. 1 unless additional fuel oil supplies become available.

The situation is not unique. New York City, for one notable instance, has suffered power shortages which plagued the daily lives of millions of people. It is noteworthy, however, that the West Coast metropolis has never previously experienced any power cutoffs except those caused by floods or storms.

The label's not the thing

Consider a hypothetical case. Not long ago two customers entered a certain supermarket in New Jersey and made their way to the meat counter. One decided on a top round roast selling for $1.49 a pound. The other, yearning for finer things, opted for what was billed as a "deli roast" at $1.89 a pound. Both customers, unknowingly, wound up with the same cut of beef.

There are a lot of fancy names these days for different cuts of meat. In some places you can buy something labeled California roast, or Miami roast; in Detroit you can buy a clod steak, in Ohio a charcoal steak, in Minnesota a bread-and-butter steak. What are you buying? Who knows?

Or take the so-called "his-and-her steaks" found in meat counters here and there. One meat expert had this to say about them: "Most customers are familiar with the names, but if they go to another town, the his-and-her steak may come from the other end of the carcass."

The underlying point, illustrated over and over in a recent Associated Press story on the subject, is that at a time of high meat prices there are a lot of misleading labels in the meat department. There also are cases of

out and out fraud: packages of "chicken livers," for example, which actually contain much cheaper chicken hearts. But what concerns us particularly at the moment is the labeling which suggests something a bit more exotic — and carries a higher price per pound — than the package in truth contains.

This may be forgiven as mere salesmanship, so long as there's no price differential on the same cut variously labeled. Still, wouldn't it be better if butchers would identify the cut as what it is and let it go at that?

A WORD EDGEWISE...by John O. Roche

Le Watergate's reverberations

AIX-EN-PROVENCE, France — The headline in the local paper tells of the arrest of the former chief of the Marseilles police vice squad for taking a bribe from a classy brothel. Since all French reporting is "advocacy journalism," the writer has a field day, noting how for years this particular officer had prided himself on his morality, on being (so help me God) "a cop honest."

Now, as the broken man is led away in chains, the journalist is overjoyed — another phony saint brought down.

Then to the serious business: LeMonde — the French newspaper of record — where lo and behold we find the same scenario with a different cast of characters. "Le Watergate" has finally blown open, heads are rolling in Washington, President Nixon has done penance, and somehow or other even Daniel Ellsberg has gotten into the act. (The slogan of the Watergate troupe seems to have been "Have tools — will travel.")

Le Monde, in its own austere way, finds the whole affair confirming its long-standing conviction that the United States of America is a lunatic asylum run by the inmates.

I HAVE a basic loyalty to and faith in American political institutions and — perhaps for subjective reasons — cannot enjoy the spectacle of the President of the United States (any President) sitting in the dock admitting he had surrounded himself with men of no integrity. Yet the conjunction of the two stories — of the "cop honest" and "Le Watergate" — struck me as quite remarkable.

For over four years, and particularly since last November, we have been exposed to a torrent of pious rhetoric featuring the "work ethic" (which I refuse to blame on the Protestants) and denouncing the Kennedy-Johnson administrations for coddling the poor, funding boondoggles, and perhaps worst of all providing the American people with unrealistic expectations.

What the Watergate developments have done is utterly demolish the moralistic pretensions of the Nixon Administration, the carefully cultivated proposition that in defeating George McGovern, Richard Nixon received some sort of mandate from the American people to return to the "old virtues." After all, what right do the sponsors of CREEP and the Watergate have to criticize some hustler who took the Office of Economic Opportunity for a few thousand bucks? Hell, CREEP's couriers never seem to have traveled without a hundred thousand bucks in cash tucked in a suitcase. What did they do with all that green?

And when it comes to giving the American people unrealistic expectations, the sponsors of CREEP and the Watergate are unrivaled — at least since the era of President Warren G. Harding. Why, for example, should anyone want to work in a factory when he knows he could be sitting in a room in the Executive Office Building faking a State Department dossier on the murder of Diem?

Or that, with a little night school training in electronics, he can pick up a fat pack of hundred dollar bills for planting a bug? The vocation of burglar has been given a new respectability — it may even turn up as one of the categories in "Who's Who."

ALTHOUGH it must be obvious that I would get a certain grim satisfaction from seeing that bunch of moralistic fakirs at hard labor in striped suits, there is still an odd aspect about the whole affair, one that leads me to feel a sense of compassion toward the man, Richard Nixon.

You see, he really does believe in the "old virtues," the "work ethic," and the other values his praetorian guard have betrayed. It is inconceivable to me that he was aware of their schemes, which leads to the final irony: "Tricky Dick" delivered into the hands of his enemies as a consequence of over-trusting his associates!

There are authentic elements of Greek tragedy in the whole appalling business: now Mr. Nixon must learn to live with Nemesis.

Watch men today when they walk into a room with a fireplace.

Even if there hasn't been any fire there for years, they back up to it and hook an elbow over the mantle. It is an act built into their genes and chromosomes over countless centuries, just like breathing.

But, man, it is a lot of work! It's much easier to flick the thermostat up a couple of degrees than to cut half a cord of wood a day.

Of course it's not that much work if you have a small boy to do the wood chopping for you.

There were some compensations.

This came on days when it was bitterly cold and the small boy's mother or grandmother decided to cook on the fireplace rather than start up the huge old cookstove in the kitchen.

Well, in no time at all the beans bubbled, the biscuits rose and browned, the ham sizzled, and there was the meal.

They don't taste half as good, either, if memory serves properly.

Editor's Note: Hal Boyle is ill.

Haven't heard any ivory tower economists or hard-headed brokers speak of it yet, but it seems reasonable that if you have any stock in the buggy whip factory you'd better hold onto it. It may rise out of sight.

This is because of what is termed the "energy crisis" but which really is nothing but an acute case of the shorts in the oil and gas supply.

They're talking now about dollar-a-gallon gasoline, and when that comes, people may turn to horsepower again.

Most people's cars get about 12 to 14 miles to the gallon, no matter how much they lie about it. And a horse will walk that far for only 50 cents or so of oats by offhand estimate.

This could mean our streets will be filled with horses and buggies. If the environmentalists who are blocking the Alaska oil pipeline believe that will improve the ecology, they just don't understand horses.

The shortages already are here as survivors of this recent winter found.

It's so bad that a fellow we know built a second fireplace in his house and laid in a good supply of wood to let it cure before the gas and heating oil supplies are gone.

There are a fairly large number of persons who didn't know what gas heat was until they were grown men and women.

Some of these complained about central heat when it finally came. They just couldn't get warm unless they backed up to a fire.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Pollution and lung diseases and treatment of sports injuries were slated to be discussed Tuesday in seminars at the Ohio State Medical Convention.

Ohio Health Director John D. Cashman was to address a general session on quality medical care in government.

Fifty-four resolutions received delegates' attention Monday, including four dealing with abortion. The OSMA was to vote on the resolutions Wednesday.

Associate chapter, elects officers

New officers elected by the Associate chapter of Phi Beta Psi Sorority in the home of Mrs. Andrew Loudner Monday evening were Mrs. Cecil VanZant, president; Mrs. Ira Barchett, vice president; Mrs. Ed Vlette, secretary; Mrs. A. B. McDonald, treasurer.

Mrs. John Sagar Sr. was welcomed as a new member by Mrs. Van Zant.

Assisting hostesses, who with Mrs. Loudner served a dessert course preceding the business session and an evening of bridge, were Mrs. M. Grove Davis, Miss Elizabeth McDonald, Mrs. L. F. Everhart and Mrs. Robert Jefferson.

A donation was made to the local Cancer Society. Cancer research, treatment and education form the sorority's national project.

Winners of bridge were Miss Helen Hudson, Mrs. Paul Pennington and Mrs. William Limes.

The group will hold a picnic in July, with the place yet to be selected. Committees for the fall meetings were named.

TO GRADUATE IN JUNE — Miss Connie Burns, daughter of Mrs. Margine Burns, of Jeffersonville, will be among the graduates June 14 from Community Hospital School of Nursing in Springfield. Miss Burns was a senior attendant at the crowning of the Queen at the annual spring formal held May 5 in the K of P Lodge in Springfield. A 1970 graduate of Miami Trace High School, she will be employed at Riverside Methodist Hospital in Columbus following graduation.

Bush wants Nixon cash for party

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican party chairman George Bush says he wants to see President Nixon's re-election campaign dismantled and its money spent on helping GOP congressional candidates next year.

"These moneys were given to support the President," said Bush in an interview. "The best way to support him would be to gain control of one or another house of Congress."

His comments came after party officials said they feared a Wednesday fundraiser for the '74 election would meet only half of a $2 million goal.

He said he did not know the legalities of closing down the Committee to Re-elect the President, which is involved in lawsuits arising from the Watergate case.

Like his predecessor, Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas, Bush has been trying unsuccessfully to obtain for the party funds left over from the Nixon re-election campaign.

Bush said future Republican fund-raising efforts will be centralized under the new party treasurer, Nashville investment banker Pat Wilson, who reports directly to Bush.

Residues found in meat, poultry

U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) laboratories found 64 violative residues out of 3,385 samples of meat and poultry products tested during the first quarter of 1973.

A total of 18,400 tests were run on these samples, according to meat and poultry inspection officials of USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (APHIS).

USDA's residue survey is a continuing program that helps assure the wholesomeness of our food supply. When above-tolerance residues of antibiotics, growth promotants or other drugs are found, the test results, portions of the sample and the name and address of the owner of the animals or birds involved are turned over to the Food and Drug Administration. FDA has legal authority over animal feed additives and drugs.

Veterans keep a tradition

Memorial Day parade here set for May 30

The annual Memorial Day parade in Washington C.H. will be held Wednesday, May 30, the date on which, traditionally, the nation has paid tribute to those who served their country in time of war.

Representatives of Paul H. Hughes and Homer Lawson posts of the American Legion, Burnett Ducey Post of Veterans of Foreign Wars and Fayette County Barracks of Veterans of World War I got together and agreed to maintain a tradition of many years and hold the parade and other observances on May 30 and not go along with the change to Monday, May 28, approved by Congress to provide a longer weekend holiday.

They took a similar stand on the change from the traditional observance of Veterans Day on Nov. 11 to a weekend to provide the longer holiday.

The veterans organizations' representatives, however, were compelled to make one change. Since the schools will still be in session on May 30, the parade will be held in the evening instead of in the morning as in the past. In the past schools were dismissed on Memorial Day.

THE PARADE ROUTE also will be shortened somewhat; it will start at the Main-Court Street intersection and go east over Court Street and Washington Avenue to Washington Cemetery. In

Hearing scheduled on discrimination

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A hearing will be held sometime next month by the Ohio Civil Rights Commission on employment discrimination charges against the Columbus Board of Education.

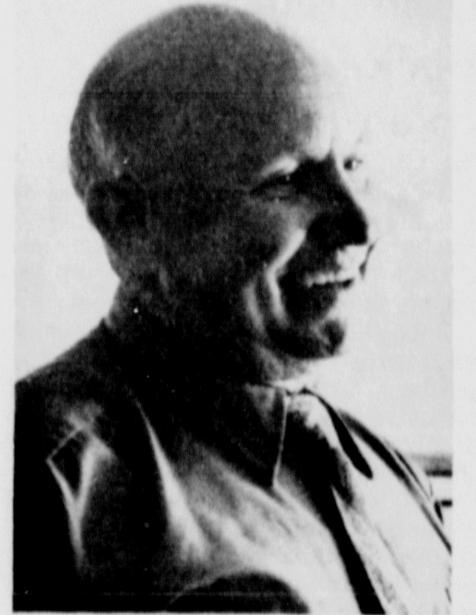

The Columbus Area Civil Rights Council and the Northwest Area Council on Human Relations groups filed the complaint against the board. The complaint charges discrimination in professional staff assignments.

French bread bakes very quickly. To freshen a whole or half loaf, dip it in cold water and then heat in a hot oven.

the past, the parade moved west over Market Street to Hinde Street, then south to Court Street and east over Court Street and Washington Avenue to the cemetery.

Francis Morgan, a past commander of Paul Hughes Post, will be the parade marshal again this year. The youth groups are to form at 6:30 p.m. on Main Street between Market and Temple streets and the band and veterans groups will form at the same time on Main Street between Court and Market streets. The parade will move out into Court Street from Main Street promptly at 7 p.m., Morgan said.

Many of the details remain to be worked out, Morgan added, although the Rev. Howard Gray probably will deliver the Memorial Day address.

Armco aids Good Hope, Senior Citizens

The Little League baseball park at Good Hope has a new dugout for players, and the Senior Citizens Center in Washington C. H. has two new sewing machines and a new portable dish washer.

They are the gifts of the employees at the Armco plant here as part of their annual observance of Founder's Day.

The employees contributed nearly $1,000 for this year's project, which was divided between the Little League and Senior Citizens. In addition to the voluntary contributions of money, employees erected the dugout which is made of Armco steel panels and frames produced at the plant here.

Each year, the employees contribute time and money to some project to commemorate Founder's Day.

Joe Dietrick was chairman of the Founder's Day project this year. Other members of the committee were Duane Scheeler, Jim Conley, Donald Robinson, Albert Donahue, Carey Butcher, Glen Jette, Shirley Moats, Mary Chinn and Chester Maple.

Delta Queen backers seek exemption

NEW RICHMOND, Ohio (AP)—New Richmond may not be a port of call for the famed Ohio riverboat Delta Queen, but its residents and others in Clermont County don't want her ruled off the inland waterways.

Bobby Lees, New Richmond zoning engineer, has started circulating petitions to Congress and President Nixon to have the Delta Queen given another exemption from provisions of the federal safety at sea law.

The Queen, last sternwheeler steamboat used for overnight cruises on inland waterways, now is operating under an exemption, but the exemption is scheduled to expire at the end of the current cruise season.

The petitions being circulated here claim the Delta Queen never should have been "classified with ocean-going vessels" and that she has a "perfect safety record."

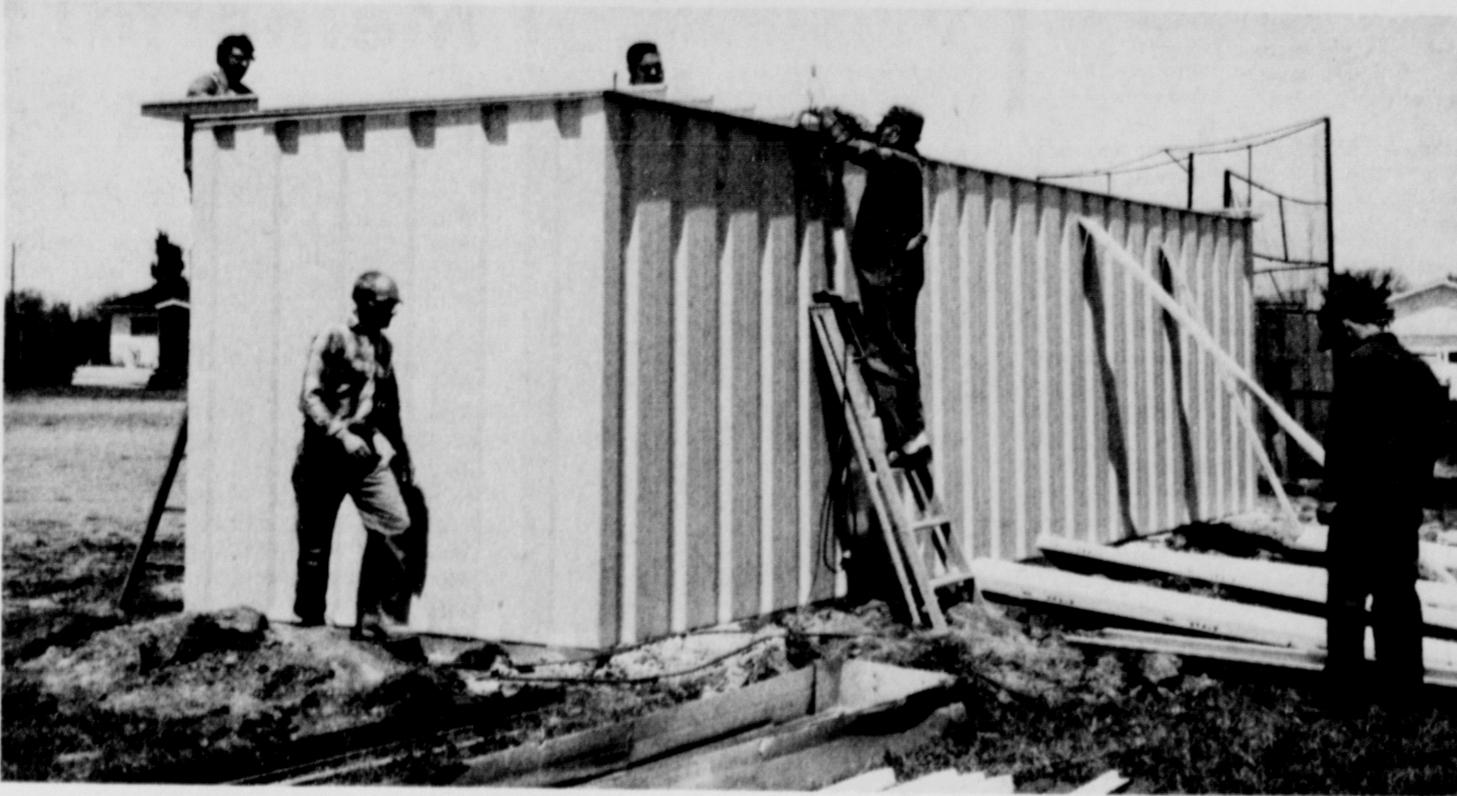

Although the Delta Queen doesn't make stops here she has a New Richmond connection. Her captain, Earnest Wagner, lives here and the Queen usually gives a calliope salute to New Richmond when she passes.

The boat plies the Ohio, Mississippi and Kentucky rivers on cruises from her home base in Cincinnati.

Processed food theory punctured

By JOHN CUNNIF

AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—Here are some observations that might change some of your pet theories.

—One of the common explanations for higher food prices is that Americans are seeking greater amounts of processed foods in order to save time in the kitchen and perhaps even to serve a tastier meal.

When we buy raw foods and prepare them at home we expend a certain amount of time and effort. We must call on skills developed over the years, skills for which we don't ordinarily charge the family.

But when we buy foods that are partially or fully prepared, we must pay for the time and artistry of the factory cook. We generally conclude that such a bargain is fair enough, especially in this day of working wives.

But a check of retail food prices in at least one area, New York-northeastern New Jersey, shows that the rise in the prices of some processed foods is much smaller than for the raw products.

Kentucky fugitive held at Norwalk

NORWALK, Ohio (AP)—The FBI says Jammie Donald Bowman, wanted on a murder charge in Kentucky for allegedly killing his wife, was arrested Monday in Norwalk, Ohio, where he had been living under an alias.

Frederick C. Fehl, special agent in charge of the FBI's Cleveland office, said the 42-year-old Bowman has been a fugitive since August, 1970, and had been working as a painter in Norwalk. Bowman was arrested by FBI agents and Norwalk police.

Fehl said Bowman also was charged with shooting and wounding his mother-in-law.

Bowman is to be turned over to local authorities for return to Kentucky, the FBI said.

Toledo police continue sick call

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP)—Police continued to call in sick Monday night in what appeared to be action taken because negotiators failed to reach agreement on a new contract.

Police began the apparent sick out Sunday night, but spokesman for the patrolmen's association and the Fraternal Order of Police declined comment on the action Monday.

City officials reported that 28 police districts in the city were being covered during the day, although only 45 of the scheduled 145 patrolmen reported for work on the morning shift. On the 3 p.m. to 11 p.m. shift only 11 of the 104 scheduled to work showed up and on the 11 p.m. to 7 a.m. shift only seven of a usual 64 reported for work.

The officers' contract with the city expired Dec. 31. Last week negotiations broke down, and a labor-management citizens committee was named to mediate the disagreement.

City council had a regularly-scheduled meeting this morning, and police reportedly planned to show up to express their concerns.

No negotiating sessions have been scheduled, however.

City Manager James Daken said the city will "just have to adjust to the strike and hope they get off it soon."

Spokesmen said police negotiators appeared to be satisfied with the wage offer made, but wanted a number of allowances and fringe benefits. The city offered a 1.1 per cent pay increase, retroactive to Jan. 1 and a per cent hike July 1.

Record income year for farmers seen

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department, reviewing the first three months of 1973, says that the economic evidence available points to a record income year for farmers despite uncertainties over weather and spring crop plantings.

During the January-March quarter, the Outlook and Situation Board said Monday, farm prices rose to record levels and indicated a net farm income rate of $22 billion. Prices are expected to recede somewhat later on, but income still is expected to be a record $21 billion.

Both crop and livestock products face exceptionally strong consumer demand, and farm prices likely will ease only slightly by midyear," the report said.

Looking ahead, the experts said that supplies of livestock and grain are expected to expand during the second half of the year to record levels.

The greatest uncertainty is the weather, particularly its impact on the feed grain-soybean production expansion which has been encouraged by the government," the report said.

"Although the expanded farm production should find ready domestic and foreign markets, prices are expected to ease by year end. For the year, farm prices average well above 1972 levels."

The report, a summary of one to be issued later this month, said that the general economy of the country speeded up "at such a rapid rate in the first quarter that gears of inflation have been rekindled in consumers and businessmen alike" despite restraints on federal spending.

Exports of farm products in the first nine months of the fiscal year began last July 1 totaled a record $8.9 billion, 49 per cent more than a year earlier, the report said. About three-fifths of increase was attributed to higher prices for grain products.

In capsule summaries, the report included these outlook views:

—Cattle on feed are more numerous in weight groups that typically supply the bulk of spring and summer marketings than they were a year ago. Prices in late spring and early summer probably will remain below the peak prices of last March.

—Hog slaughter will be near year-earlier levels this spring but will exceed them in the summer and fall. Prices will probably remain above a year earlier until the fourth quarter.

—Broiler chicken output may exceed last year's levels in late summer or fall, although uncertainty over feed costs clouds the picture. Prices will remain strong in the spring and summer but may decline from current levels.

—Egg prices will remain sharply above the low levels of 1972 for most of the year. Output will continue below 1972 levels but may equal last year's output toward the end of 1973.

—Turkey production will be up

Ohioan called turn on Watergate

By PERRY SMITH
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — One Ohio Democrat can say, "I told you so" about the Watergate scandal and show proof.

William L. Coleman of Marysville, former state Democratic chairman, called the turn about the break-in of Democratic national headquarters last November.

His prediction came in a letter to John Connally, chairman of Democrats for Nixon.

He accused the Texas Democrat of doing "a great injustice" to the two-party system.

"More important, however," he wrote, "is the fact you are supporting an administration which had apparently become so corrupt that 'Teapot Dome' will look like a Sunday School party in comparison when his story is written."

Coleman suggested that the former

Police identified the victims as Louise W. Zimmerman of Harrod in Allen County and John R. Howald of Wapakoneta.

Police said both were driving their cars around a curve in the road.

Texas governor should change from Democrat to Republican by resigning from the party at the time, rather than wait until after the election.

He even enclosed a resignation form for Connally to sign.

Coleman has not been alone in mentioning Watergate and Teapot Dome in the same breath. Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., did the same thing.

John Ledingham, public relations director for Atty. Gen. William J. Brown, complains that his latest memo wasn't leaked to newsmen.

For some days Ledingham has been wriggling over a memo he put out to department heads telling them how to handle newsmen. The memo instructed staff members always to have their secretaries say they were "in conference" when a newsmen called. This, he said, would give him time to check out what the newsmen was calling about.

The second memo, said Ledingham, ran only three words: "Ignore previous memos."

Gov. John J. Gilligan has plans for a liberalized workmen's compensation plan.

Over in a corner of a downtown watering place for legislators and statehouse employees, a couple of lobbyists wondered if they might be included.

"I don't know why not," said one. "Alcoholism is considered a disease, and it's as much a hazard to our trade as blacklung to the miners."

If and when Chief Justice C. William O'Neill bows out of Ohio's Supreme Court, a justice just back on the high court figures to be his successor.

Paul Brown just won back his old seat on the Supreme Court last November after a three-year absence in which he served as Attorney General and ran unsuccessfully for the Republican nomination as governor.

Ohio's Constitution says the chief justice should be the justice with the longest service. It doesn't say continuous service, so Brown would be the man, although technically he is one of the newer members on the bench. The current term is his second.

DiGregorio sparks U.S. cage victory

NEW YORK (AP) — Even in basketball, there's a place for the little man.

Ernie DiGregorio of Providence, the littlest man on the floor, proved it Monday night as he sparked the U.S. squad to an 89-80 overtime victory over the touring Russian National basketball team before 15,734 at Madison Square Garden.

"Ernie sure got us going when we needed it, didn't he?" praised U.S. Coach Bob Cousy, a pretty fair little man in his own right. "He picked us up when we were in trouble, big trouble."

Ernie D. sank a pair of baskets in the final minute of regulation play to erase a 73-69 Russian lead, hit two baskets in overtime and set up two more to put the Americans out ahead, then stymied the Russians with his artful dribbling and ballhandling.

"As I've said before, Ernie is the best player—pound for pound—that I've seen in college this year. Some of the things he does are just amazing."

The Russian coach, Vladimir Kandashin, was equally impressed.

"If we had him, we wouldn't lose any games," Kandashin said.

From the time he re-entered the game, with 2:08 to go in regulation, up until the finish, Ernie D. was the whole show.

"At the end I felt I had to take over and I did," said the six-foot All-American. That he did. His shooting was deadly, his passing brilliantly accurate, his dribbling dazzlingly deft.

In the overtime, with the U.S. squad safely in front, he ran circles around the Russians as they tried to take the ball away from him. None could catch him.

MT absorbs third setback of season

A five-run eruption in the fifth inning carried Greenfield McClain to a 7-4 victory over Miami Trace Monday in a meaningless South Central Ohio League game on the Tiger diamond.

Head coach Dave Pelliott's Panthers, who have clinched at least a share of this year's SCOL championship, bunched together four runs at the end of the third inning, but Greenfield scored a pair in the fourth and then exploded for five runs on six hits in the fifth to seal the win.

It was the third loss in 10 outings this spring for Miami Trace, which finished the abbreviated SCOL schedule with a 4-1 chart.

MT's reserves cop fifth win

Miami Trace's reserve baseball team picked up its fifth win of the season Monday night by popping Greenfield 12-3 at the MTHS diamond.

Kevin Dunn twirled a one-hitter for Miami Trace in the game which was called after five innings because of darkness.

Freshman Allen Conner had two hits in two trips and also scored a pair of runs while P. R. Marshall belted his fifth double of the season. Mark Spears and Greg Cobb had doubles for the Panthers.

Miami Trace, now 5-0-1, will travel to Circleville for a doubleheader Saturday.

T. G. Knight wins feature

LEBANON, Ohio (AP) — T. G. Knight, came from four lengths behind Monday night to win the featured conditional pace at Lebanon Raceway.

T. G. Knight, owned by Edmund W. Creelman of Lebanon, covered the mile in 2:05 4-5 and paid $3.40, $2.60 and $2.40. It was his second victory in seven starts this year.

Reed's Pence, which led most of the way, finished second and paid $4.80 and $3.00. Third place finisher, Limber Legs, paid $2.40.

The daily double paid $131.00 with Rumpus winning the first race and Mr. Fisherman the second.

for Washington C.H. which has permitted opposing teams a meager three runs in the last 25 innings of action.

The win sends the streaking Washington C.H. team into action Thursday night against South Central Ohio League Rival Circleville. The game will be played at 4:30 p.m. Thursday at the WSHS diamond.

Phone book deliveries announced

Delivery of Ohio Bell's 1973-74 Washington C. H. telephone directories will begin Friday, according to Bruce Galloway, commercial manager for the phone company.

About 14,000 copies of the new book will be distributed door to door in Washington C. H. and nearby communities by special carriers. All subscribers in the area should have their new books by May 17, Galloway said.

Small personal directories will be delivered along with the regular telephone directories this year, Galloway noted. The book has spaces for personal listings of names, addresses and phone numbers. It is narrow enough to be slipped between the foot posts under a standard desk telephone.

The book also contains some helpful hints on how to save on long distance calls. Additional copies of the personal directory can be picked up at the Ohio Bell business office, 334 E. Court St.

THE COVER of the book this year features a red and yellow stylized photograph, "Wild Geese in Flight." The book contains 40 white pages and 100 yellow pages.

Fire, police and other emergency numbers are listed on the inside front cover. General information on telephone service and equipment will be found on the pages preceding the alphabetical listings.

The eight-page blue section contains a brief history of Washington C. H., along with civic information, a city map and points of interest.

The section is also a handy reference for traffic safety tips, postal information and zip codes.

Minor loss listed in two-car accident

City police investigated a minor two-car accident in the 200 block of S. Hinde Street at 9:17 a.m. Monday.

Officers said a car driven by Gertie E. Randolph, 54, of 703 Yeoman St., was pulling into a parking space and bumped the right rear fender of a parked car owned by Howard L. Derring, 1027 S. Main St.

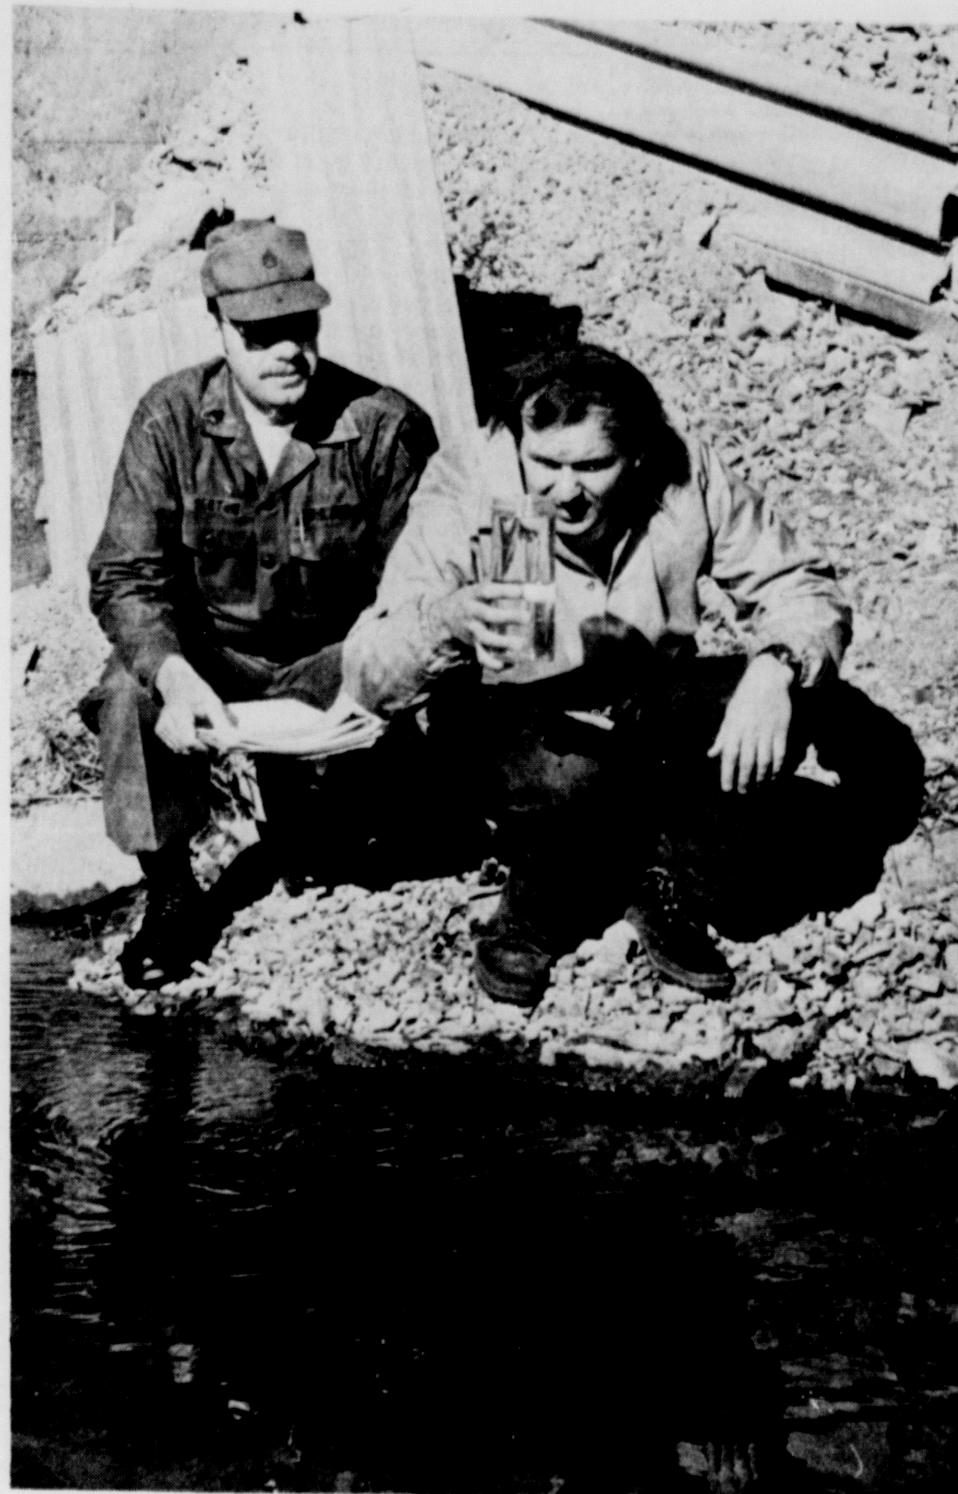

There was slight damage to both cars.

Octa Council OKs alley improvement

OCTA — Village Council gave the go-ahead signal to an alley improvement project at its regular monthly meeting Monday night. Mayor P. W. Gookenbarger was delegated to contact suppliers of limestone and award the job on the basis of the most favorable price.

Only other business was the payment of current bills.

Theft, vandalism cases reported in city, county

Three minor theft and vandalism incidents were investigated by local law enforcement agencies Monday.

A spare tire and chain were stolen from a semi-rig parked along Biddle Boulevard, in Bloomingburg Sunday night. Roy Dudley, owner of the rig, set the loss at $80.

The air hoses on two semi-rigs parked on the Cudahy Co. lot, 532 Dayton Ave., were cut Monday evening. Virgil Martin, Bloomingburg, driver of one of the rigs, discovered the cut hose on his rig about 10 p.m. He checked the airhorn on the other rig parked near his and found it had also been severed.

Police are investigating the incident. The windshield of a car owned by Clarence Fitch, Bloomingburg, was shot out during the past two days. Sheriff's deputies said the windshield had been hit twice with pellets from an air rifle. The car was parked in a garage at the rear of the residence at the time.

Prayer breakfast series near end for school year

Ninety students and teachers attended the weekly prayer breakfast Tuesday at the South Side Church of Christ. This was one of the biggest turnouts in a long time and it included a group of 18 members of the WSHS Hi-Y Club who came in a body.

The WSHS head football coach, Maurice Pfeifer, conducted the devotional on the theme "Fighting with Love." Michelle Davis, a WJHS freshman, led the singing with Linda Hollingsworth, also a WSHS freshman, was the accompanist.

The final prayer breakfast of the school year will be next Tuesday morning, but plans are in the making for resuming weekly meetings next fall, according to the Rev. Charles J. Richmond, the pastor and originator of the prayer breakfast series here.

Students now in the eighth grade and will enter junior high school in September, are invited to join the junior and senior high school students of both the city and Miami Trace district next Tuesday, the Rev. Mr. Richmond said.

Oscar Wilde play scheduled at WC

WILMINGTON — The Wilmington College Theatre Department will present its version of Oscar Wilde's "The Importance of Being Earnest" in Boyd Auditorium on the Wilmington campus Thursday through Saturday at 8:30 p.m. Kathy Eckstrand, of Xenia, and Wayne Dunn, of Lebanon, will play the lead roles.

The play is being directed by Robert Jones, assistant professor of theatre at Wilmington, who was a professional actor in Cincinnati for four years before he joined the college faculty in 1969.

Tickets for the production will be available at the door.

Tuesday, May 8, 1973 Washington C.H. (O.) Record-Herald - Page 13 'Measure' Chillicothe highway

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Are you one of those motorists who fusses and fumes from the jolting your car gets as it passes over rough joints on the highway?

If you are, University of Cincinnati researchers are trying to do something about it.

Issam Minkarah and John Cook of the UC civil engineering department are making an intensive study of all the factors that affect those road joints on a stretch of highway near Chillicothe.

The highway is a three-quarter mile section of the U.S. 23 bypass, built with the study in mind. It carries 40,000 to 50,000 vehicles daily.

Minkarah said, "the expansion joints are where the highway pavement always starts to break up. About 80 cents of every highway maintenance dollar is spent on repairing the joints."

The two professors say they expect to know the highway section "inside and out" by the end of the first year of study, late this summer.

Funds already have been allocated for a second year, with the Ohio Department of Transportation providing $25,000 a year.

Variables that affect the joints have been isolated by dividing the highway into ten sections. Each section contains ten joints.

In one section, for example, the joints have a different subbase. Other variations include length of spacing, types of dowels, width of openings, configurations of joint openings and joints that are skewed at different angles.

Horizontal movement of the joints is measured monthly with a specially-built, hand gauge and daily by battery-powered transducers mounted on the side of the pavement.

A transducer works like a TV volume control, transmitting variations in electrical resistance to a recording device.

Minkarah and Cook now plan to begin measuring vertical movement of the roadway. The vertical movement "is what really beats you up," said Cook.

He added that when vertical movement becomes excessive is "when it starts causing people trouble."

Cook said the research team hopes to come up with "better and safer pavement" in another year or so.

"Hopefully," he added, "that pavement will also be more maintenance-free."

7 Goodrich plants struck; URW talks are broken off

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Negotiations between the United Rubber Workers Union and the B.F. Goodrich Co. broke off early today without agreement on a new contract and with URW members on strike at seven Goodrich plants across the country.

A company spokesman said no time had been set for resumption of negotiations.

The URW ordered their 10,450 members employed by Goodrich on strike at midnight.

One exception was the firm's largest plant with 3,200 employees at Akron, Ohio, where picket lines were set up at 10 p.m. (EDT).

Strikes were also ordered against plants in Marion, Ohio; Miami, Okla.; Tuscaloosa, Ala.; Oaks, Pa.; Fort

Connally not back in cabinet

WASHINGTON (AP) — A meeting between President Nixon and Republican-convert John B. Connally has not returned Connally to the Nixon Cabinet. At least at this time.

Nixon apparently sounded out the former secretary of the Treasury about taking a new assignment during a session Monday at the Florida White House in Key Biscayne.

But Connally was understood to have no interest in the only Cabinet-level post, now open, that of Secretary of Defense.

If the former Texas governor does rejoin the administration he is expected to serve only on an interim or a part-time basis.

Nixon and Connally, close both personally and politically, met for more than two hours shortly before Nixon left Florida for Washington after a long weekend stay. The new White House staff chief, Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr., participated in part of the meeting.

Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said only that Nixon and his visitor discussed "matters in general, including some of the President's thinking about ongoing operations of government."

Ziegler had said earlier the President is devoting much of his attention to restructuring his White House staff, shattered at the top by the Watergate-related resignations last week of Chief of Staff H.R. Haldeman and domestic policy coordinator John D. Ehrlichman.

The Royal Canadian Mounted Police maintains crime laboratories at Ottawa and Regina.

Opening lead - two of spades.
Let's say you're in three notrump and win the spade lead with the ace. There is a question of how to play the hand, one possibility being to cash the ace of clubs, enter dummy with a diamond, and try a club finesse.

The danger is that the finesse may fail, in which case you would automatically go down after a spade continuation. You would lose three spades, a club and a heart.

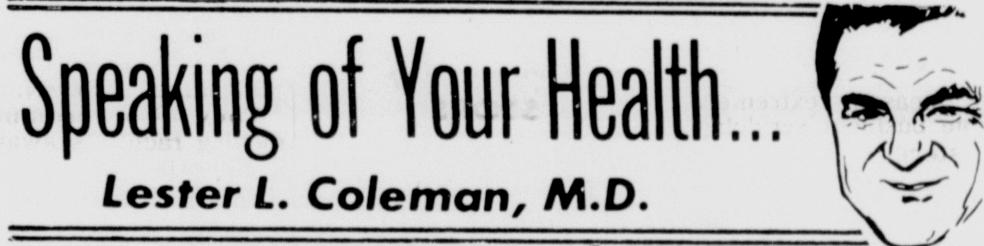

Another possibility is to lead a low heart to the queen at trick two. This would lose to East's ace, as expected, and back would come a spade. You would now be able to make the contract if the opponents' hearts were divided 3-3 or if the club finesse succeeded. But, in the actual case, both chances would fail and this time you would finish down two.

However, there is still another way of playing the hand and this, considering the bidding, is the proper plan to adopt. It is based on the virtual certainty that East, for this overcall, has the ace of hearts, and once this is conceded the contract is absolutely unstoppable.

At trick two you enter dummy with a diamond and lead a low heart back. This play presents East with a tantalizing dilemma. If he goes up with the ace, you have nine tricks without a finesse — three hearts, two spades, two diamonds and two clubs.

If he doesn't go up, you win with the jack and speedily abandon the suit, shifting to the A-K and another club. This also produces nine tricks, namely, four clubs, two spades, a heart and two diamonds.

All roads lead to Rome.

What 'Dropped Stomach' Does

I weigh less than 100 pounds and have been told that I have a dropped stomach.

Can this be responsible for the gall bladder attacks that have plagued me for most of my adult life?

Mrs. J. M., Utah

At the turn of the century the term "dropped stomach" seemed to have caught the imagination of a great many people. It was used almost indiscriminately at that time.

Today it is recognized that in some people the stomach does drop from its normal position. This occurs in delicate, thin people and may cause digestive disturbances and interfere with the normal emptying of the stomach.

The gall bladder, which stores bile

for the purpose of digestion, sends it to the intestine through a thin tube. Since this tube enters the small intestine at the point where the intestine and the stomach join, it is conceivable that a "dropped stomach" may interfere with this mechanism.

When medical treatment and regulation of diet are not effective, surgery is sometimes advised to replace and keep the stomach in proper position.

Is there any value to hormone creams and ointments for the return of hair in cases of baldness?

Mr. H. G., Calif.

I believe it is generally accepted that the use of male sex hormone, or "testosterone," for baldness has been totally discredited.

The original enthusiasm was understandable, but health officials have warned against incorporating these hormones in cosmetics.

In essence, they are drugs that should be used only by prescription and under the direction of the doctor. These hormone creams are absorbed through the skin and may produce unusual side effects.

It is important that women, too, understand that these same side effects can occur when hormones are used as facial creams and "rejuvenators."

During the past few years the tips of my fingers have become thickened to almost twice their normal size.

I am in good health and am concerned about this strange condition.

Mr. T. T. G., Ark.

Dear Mr. G.: The condition you describe is referred to as "clubbing" of the fingers. Swelling and rounding of the tips of the fingers are often associated with people who have chronic lung conditions.

Bronchitis, emphysema, and bronchiectasis of long standing may be responsible.

The same condition has been noted in children and adults who were born with some form of congenital heart disease.

It is important that you should follow through and be completely checked to find the exact reason for the clubbing of your fingers.

In Focus

by

Charlie Pensyl

Many years ago the United States was invaded by millions of one-eyed monsters that took over the living rooms of our homes and set new rules for our way of living, of thinking, yes, even the foods we eat and the shampoo we use on our hair. Television also changed our hobbies. Those who had been spending three nights a week in the darkroom were now involved in TV wrestling. Now there seems to be a migration back to the dark room. But when these characters leave the tube and go back they find there are many changes. The darkroom is now called the PHOTOLAB. And in that photolab there are wonderful new chemicals that were unheard of before TV. And the new photographic papers! There is still much fun in the photolab, but now we must think in terms of the new compensating developers, and the new papers like some of the new Agfa papers that give us far better blacks and better whites than anything on the market a few years ago. In our own darkroom, sorry, I mean photolab, we switched to Agfa paper about three years ago. Quality.

By the way, do you know why the term photolab has replaced darkroom? People in the industry felt that the idea of a darkroom might frighten people since it had a sort of diabolical connotation. "Come with me to the photolab" seems a little less suggestive than, "Come with me to the darkroom." Anyway, building a photolab in your home is again the popular thing to do, and more and more people are rediscovering the fun of developing, printing and enlarging.

Leonhardy is released

GUADALAJARA, Mexico (AP) — "Thank God," said U.S. Consul General Terrance G. Leonhardy when he returned home Monday night and embraced his wife 76 hours after a guerrilla band kidnapped him on a street here.

"I am very happy," the 58-year-old diplomat said. With bloodshot eyes and a heavy, gray stubble on his cheeks and chin, he made a brief appearance for photographers supported by his wife on one side and Jack Higgins of the State Department on the other. But his doctor would not allow him to answer newsmen's questions.

Leonhardy was freed, tired but unharmed, 39 hours after the Mexican government released 30 persons from jail and flew them to Cuba to ransom the American.

"I can only express how happy I am to be free again and reunited with my family and with friends and colleagues, both Mexican and American," he said in a brief statement read to newsmen for him by a spokesman.

"I would also like to say how deeply grateful I am to all those who helped so much, and especially to the Mexican authorities whose constant preoccupation and efforts made my release possible."

There was no immediate word where Leonhardy was held after a group of armed men grabbed him Friday afternoon as he drove home alone.

Mrs. Leonhardy was in the United States at the time, beginning a 10-day visit with friends, but rushed back Saturday and joined the couple's two young daughters.

Panel sees resource crisis near

WASHINGTON (AP) — The controversial theory that resources shortages may actually threaten modern civilization today won official support from a U.S. government agency for the first time.

In the first comprehensive survey of U.S. mineral resources since 1952, the U.S. Geological Survey warned that "not merely (U.S.) affluence, but world civilization" are "in jeopardy."

The Geological Survey published a 722-page, item-by-item analysis of U.S. supply and demand in 64 mineral resources and warned that many of them are, or will be, in short supply.

A study prepared at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology two years ago, called "The Limits To Growth," warned that modern civilization would overshoot the world's ability to sustain it, and would collapse unless population growth and industrial production are soon curtailed.

A similar view was expressed by British scientists in a paper called "Blueprint for Survival."

But such ideas have been criticized by others, including public officials, who charged that the gloomy projections were based on inadequate data and shaky assumptions.

The new Geological Survey study, which set itself the task of gauging the adequacy of mineral supplies for the future, thus lends new, and for the first time official, support to the dire warnings of the "Limits" and "Blueprint" studies.

"Careful study of ... the volume in its entirety," wrote editors Donald A. Brobat and Walden P. Pratt, "leads to the conclusion that only a few commodities are readily available to the United States in quantities adequate to last for hundreds of years.

"By no means is it too early to become concerned about future mineral supplies—and to start planning."

"The real extent of our dependence on mineral resources places in jeopardy not merely affluence, but world civilization," they said.

Brobat and Pratt urged that the environmental problems of mining "enormous volumes of low-grade ores" should be tackled "squarely, realistically, and soon ... between industry and the public at large."

They pointed to "the extent to which many potential byproducts or coproducts are literally being wasted—

McKelvey based his view on the "undeveloped potential ... in each of the processes by which we create resources," saying that "our experience justifies the belief that these processes have dimensions beyond our knowledge and even beyond our imagination at any given time."

Gilligan said earlier that while he favors the amendment to ban discrimination on the basis of sex, he accepted the "legislative decision" and would not actively seek to change anyone's mind.

However, William Chavanne, the governor's deputy assistant for legislative affairs, has been trying to know what they'll do, but this is the last chance they will have," Aronoff said. The motion has to be made by a senator who voted on the prevailing side.

None of the six holdouts has stated publicly that he would make such a motion, despite considerable pressure from women proponents and the governor who termed the initial action "a disappointment."

Indian militants lay down arms

WOUNDED KNEE, S.D. (AP) — Indian militants holding Wounded Knee were to lay down their weapons today, ending a 70-day siege that claimed the lives of two of the insurgents but accomplished the militants' goal of calling national attention to Indian affairs.

The Feb. 27 takeover of this Pine Ridge Reservation village by militants of the American Indian Movement caught the nation's attention and held it for more than two months.

An agreement to end the armed conflict was signed Sunday by government negotiators, village occupants and traditional headmen and chiefs of the Oglala Sioux tribe.

The agreement called for a repossession of arms beginning Wednesday morning. However, government negotiator Richard Hellstern said Monday that AIM leader Dennis Banks and spiritual adviser Leonard Crow Dog requested that the process be moved up to today.

Under terms of the agreement, village occupants are to gather in a central location while all weapons and explosives are taken by Community Relations Service personnel of the Justice Department.

Persons with warrants outstanding for their arrest will be taken to Rapid City for bond hearings. Nonresidents must leave the reservation. Permanent residents will be escorted back home after marshals search the village and make certain it is safe.

The disarmament will be followed by implementation of an April 5 agreement between the Indian militants and the government that calls for discussions of an 1898 U.S. treaty with the Teton Sioux.

Under that provision, five or more representatives of the White House will meet on the reservation with chiefs, headmen and other Sioux leaders within two weeks. AIM contends the 1898 treaty gave the Sioux all land in South Dakota west of the Missouri River.

The April 5 pact also committed the government to audit Oglala Sioux tribal books and government-funded programs on the Pine Ridge Reservation and to investigate civil rights complaints in the area, as demanded by AIM.

The price for the Indians was high, however. Two of their members were shot and killed during gun battles with federal officers who ringed the village, and others face federal indictments for their roles in the occupation.

Implicate high-ups in military graft

WASHINGTON (AP) — Four Army enlisted men convicted of bilking military service clubs of hundreds of thousands of dollars today implicated high-ranking officers in a coverup of the activity. In sworn statements given to investigators in advance of a hearing today by the Senate government operations subcommittee, they outline a pattern of command influence that the men say was designed to make service clubs in Germany, Vietnam and Ft. Benning, Ga., turn illegal profits.

The four, including former Sgt. Maj. William O. Wooldridge, had not testified publicly until now about how they stole from slot machine operations and took kickbacks from military suppliers for more than 10 years.

When called to testify before the subcommittee in October 1969 they took the Fifth Amendment against self-incrimination.

All have pleaded guilty in a Los Angeles Federal court to charges of conspiracy to defraud the service clubs. They have yet to be sentenced, pending their agreement to appear today before the subcommittee.

Wooldridge, the first man to ever hold the job of Army Sergeant Major said he used his position to control the transfer of his friends, who in turn were raking off the profits of the service clubs.

Wooldridge said that in Vietnam he came to the aid of two non-commissioned officers arrested for black market currency violations. He said Maj. Gen. John H. Hay, then commander of the U.S. First Division, was persuaded that the two men should not be prosecuted.

The two were allowed to return to the U.S. and retire rather than face courts martial.

Senate investigators quoted Wooldridge as saying there was clear evidence the men were guilty of illicit behavior. One of them, former Sgt. Seymour Lavzar, was convicted with Wooldridge and scheduled to appear with him.

In Germany in 1966, Wooldridge told the investigators, the commander of the 24th Infantry Division, Maj. Gen. William Cunningham, was aware that a percentage of slot machine profits was being stolen by the sergeants who ran the service clubs.

Air Force in wordy 'denial' of plush airplane charges

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — The Air Forces Logistics Command Monday said that contrary to a statement made by Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., a C-135 aircraft was not being remodeled for the personal use logistics commander Gen. Jack Catton.

Proxmire Sunday said he had confirmed that Catton ordered the remodeling of the aircraft into a "luxury liner" at a cost to taxpayers of $430,000.

The command issued the following statement:

"Contrary to Senator Proxmire's statement, the aircraft is not being refurbished for Gen. Catton's personal use, nor is it being modified to Air Force One standards."

"A 12-year-old test bed configured C-135 no longer required to support the Air Force Systems Command missile tracking and test mission was assigned last year to Air Force Logistics Command to replace a 20-year-old C-118 mission support aircraft. The C-135 is now being restrengthened and reconfigured to its passenger-carrying mission."

"We do not wish to preclude the General Accounting Office report, and will of course cooperate with the GAO, but the rework of the C-135 is cost effective (economical), because it is far cheaper than procuring a new aircraft, will extend this particular old aircraft service life by 9,000 flying hours and will enable AFLC to effectively meet its worldwide mission requirements."

A public information spokesman for the command would not specifically confirm or deny the cost or type of refurbishing Proxmire said was being done.

"At this time all I can say is what is in the statement," the spokesman said. Proxmire said he had confirmed plans to include a refrigerator, self-cleaning range, large tables, soundproofing, reupholstering of chairs and blue carpeting. He added that he asked the GAO to check into information he received that other work included new engines, three bedrooms, a new kitchen, a trash compactor, stereo system, a 14-foot freezer and a bar.

The logistics command is headquartered at Wright-Patterson Air

Force Base where the plane is scheduled to arrive sometime this month. Refurbishing began in January at Tinker Air Force Base in Oklahoma.

Disaster plan disclosed

by President

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon asked Congress today to consolidate disaster activities in a single federal agency that would speed aid to victims while forcing the states to assume more responsibility in recovery from floods, earthquakes and other natural catastrophes.

"This bill would place greater emphasis on protecting people and property against the effects of disasters before they occur," Nixon said.

"While we cannot fully control the occurrence and the impact of disasters, we must do all we can to prepare for them, to prevent them, and to mitigate and remedy their effects."

Post captures Pulitzer Prize for Watergate

NEW YORK (AP) — "The newspaper didn't flinch or buckle under pressure. It's good for journalism and the country. It's time to be cautious, not to speculate but stick to the facts as we did."

That's how Washington Post reporter Robert Woodward summed up his reaction to his newspaper's receiving the 1973 Pulitzer Prize for meritorious public service for its work on the Watergate scandal.

Although the award went to the newspaper, The Post's managing editor, Howard Simons, singled out for praise Woodward and fellow reporter Carl Bernstein. The two young reporters have spent the last 10 months producing the newspaper's major disclosures of White House involvement in the 1972 campaign espionage operation.

David Broder, the Post's national political correspondent, also received a Pulitzer Prize for commentary for his political columns on the 1972 election campaign.

Other winners of the 1973 Pulitzer Prizes announced Monday were:

—Associated Press Photographer Huynh Cong "Nick" Ut, a Vietnamese, won the prize for spot news photography for his picture of a little, naked Vietnamese girl fleeing a napalm bombing. The award to Ut was the 11th time an AP photographer has won the prize, including four of the last five years.

—Reporters Robert Boyd and Clark Hoyt of the Knight Newspapers' Washington bureau won the prize for reporting on national affairs for their disclosure of the history of psychiatric therapy undergone by Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo. Eagleton subsequently withdrew as the Democratic vice presidential nominee.

—The Chicago Tribune was awarded the prize for general local reporting for its investigation of flagrant violations of voting procedures in a primary election.

Some U.S. cars meet '75 standards

WASHINGTON (AP) — Four U.S.-manufactured 1973 cars have performed in federal tests within the new, relaxed pollution levels set by the government for 1975.

Detroit's Big Three automakers have attacked the auto emission levels as extremely severe and almost impossible to meet without complicated devices that filter exhaust gases.

Sources at one automaker estimated that as many as 33 other 1973 models tested by the Environmental Protection Agency came so close to meeting the 1975 levels that '75 models probably could meet the levels. The reason is that less stringent emission test conditions are planned for that year.

The EPA's certification test results on the four 1973 U.S. cars and a fifth, a Frenchmade Peugeot station wagon, were published without fanfare last week in the Federal Register.

Asked about these results, Eric Stork of the EPA's auto pollution office said he could not characterize the 1973 cars as having already met the 1975 standards because comparing current and 1975 standards is complex and results can vary.

But the EPA tests show that each U.S. automaker "is marketing a car which has a high potential for meeting the 1975 standards," Stork said.

Spokesmen for the Big Three automakers—General Motors, Ford and Chrysler—said that the companies still stand by last month's statements that national auto emission standards went to the Sun Newspapers of Omaha, Neb., for bringing to light the financial assets and fund raising operation of Boys Town, a nationally known institution.

—Max Frankel, former Washington bureau chief of The New York Times and now the paper's Sunday editor, won the prize for reporting on international affairs for his coverage of President Nixon's visit to China.

—Roger B. Linscott of the Berkshire Eagle of Pittsfield, Mass., was honored for editorial writing.

—No prize was awarded for editorial cartooning.

—The award for feature photography went to Brian Lanker of the Topeka, Kan., Capital Journal for a series of pictures on natural childbirth.

—Ronald Powers of the Chicago Sun-Times won the prize for criticism for his writing about television.

The Pulitzer trustees award the prizes on the recommendation of an advisory board of journalists.

Lee Hills, president of Knight Newspapers, called the work of Boyd and Hoyt "an extraordinary example of the American press functioning at its best

"At a time when the credibility of the press was suspect in many quarters, when the press itself seemed often under attack, we believe their handling of the Eagleton story provided a benchmark by which both our critics and our colleagues might measure press performance at its best."

In the field of the arts, the trustees of Columbia University named Jason Miller's "That Championship Season," as the best drama of the year. Miller's first Broadway play tells of a reunion of a high school basketball team with its coach.

Eudora Welty won the fiction award for "The Optimist's Daughter." The nonfiction prize was shared by Frances FitzGerald for her "Fire in the Lake: The Vietnamese and the Americans in Vietnam" and Dr. Robert Coles for for 1975 appear impossible to meet without catalytic converters for filtering exhaust.

But one spokesman, who asked not to be identified, said "We're awfully close, but we've got to get far better so our average stays up."

Chrysler, whose Plymouth Satellite with a 340 cubic-inch engine showed pollution levels within 1975 specifications, called the EPA's test results happenstance. The same car emitted pollutants in excess of 1975 levels in Chrysler's own tests, even though the car performed better in EPA tests. Instrument measuring alone could cause a 10 to 20 per cent difference in readings for the same car, a Chrysler spokesman said.

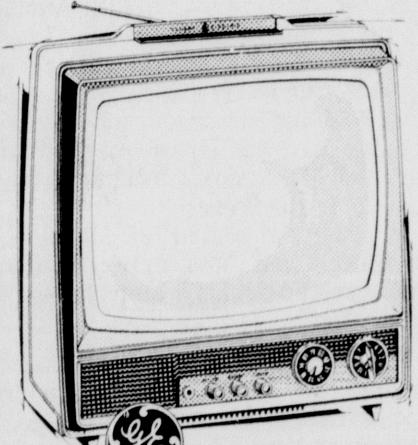

"The test results cited illustrate the phenomenon of test variability," said Donald A. Jensen, Ford's director of auto emission control programs. Ford's LTD-class car with a 400 cubic-inch engine came in under the 1975 pollution levels.

General Motors' cars performed the best over-all of the American makers in the EPA 1973 certification tests. One of its Vegas produced pollutants within 1975 levels.

The other 1973 car within the 1975 levels was an American Motors Hornet.

Former EPA Administrator William D. Ruckelshaus granted the automakers' request for easier 1975 nationwide standards last month. But he set interim standards slightly higher than the manufacturers had asked.

Wave of kidnapings grows worse

By ROBERT D. OHMAN

Associated Press Writer

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) —

On Sept. 4, 1969, antigovernment guerrillas in Rio de Janeiro kidnaped the U.S. ambassador to Brazil, C. Burke Elbrick.

He was freed after the government released 15 prisoners, but his abduction set in motion a wave of political kidnapings in Latin America that is still growing in some countries.

The tactic of seizing an official for political gain spread to Guatemala, Mexico, Uruguay and Argentina. There also were isolated cases in the Dominican Republic, Columbia and Bolivia.

Common criminals, noting the reluctance of governments to risk the lives of those kidnaped, decided it was easier to snatch a wealthy victim for a cash ransom than rob a bank.

Diplomats and businessmen have been the chief targets, and the ever-present threat has forced them to change their lives. Embassies have become fortresses with the diplomats under constant armed guard. Business houses have increased their security staffs and assigned bodyguards to their leading executives.

Some kidnapings go unreported to protect the victims' lives, but there have been more than 200 since 1969 in Argentina, Uruguay, Brazil, Mexico and Guatemala.

It is estimated that a fourth of these were committed by antigovernment guerrillas, generally leftists or anarchists.

Most of the victims were released unharmed after the kidnapers' conditions were met, but a dozen have been slain.

Nearly 150 so-called political prisoners have been set free and flown to Cuba, Algeria or Chile.

In Argentina alone, ransoms totaling $13 million have been paid in the past 12 months, including a record $1.7 million last month for a British tobacco executive.

Tough military measures in Brazil and Uruguay virtually have stamped out political kidnaping. The crime has also tapered off in Guatemala, but it continues simmering in Mexico and has skyrocketed in Argentina.

Argentine police registered six major abductions in 1970 and three in 1971. They jumped to 18 in 1972 and soared to 29 in the first four months of this year.

Young people go on rampage

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) —

Cleveland police are trying to find out why a band of 28 young people went on a rampage in offices of the city's Model Cities program, using clubs and baseball bats to smash equipment Monday.

Police said the youths made a similar attack on the offices of Hope, Inc., a housing organization. Damage at the two offices totaled $10,000, police reported.

Officers arrested 25 boys, aged 14 to 17, and three men at an East Side intersection a few blocks away shortly after the Hope offices were damaged.

A new electricity habit

Events and portents keep reminding the American public that the era of heedless consumption of energy in this country is rapidly drawing to a close. It will be hard to break the habit of using as much power as we please, but break it we must. The alternative is involuntary curtailment of energy consumption.

A potent new reminder of this comes from Los Angeles. City officials warn that there will have to be "brownouts" — imposed cutoffs of electricity — starting Sept. 1 unless addition fuel oil supplies become available.

The situation is not unique. New York City, for one notable instance, has suffered power shortages which plagued the daily lives of millions of people. It is noteworthy, however, that the West Coast metropolis has never previously experienced any power cutoffs except those caused by floods or storms.

Something new is in prospect, therefore, unless as Los Angeles city officials say the "immediate and urgent" need for additional fuel oil commitments is met. And the rest of us — whether in metropolitan areas or smaller communities drawing electricity from power networks covering wide areas — are reminded that if we want to avoid shortages we had better form a new habit: voluntary restraint and discipline in use of power.

The label's not the thing

Consider a hypothetical case. Not long ago two customers entered a certain supermarket in New Jersey and made their way to the meat counter. One decided on a top round roast selling for $1.49 a pound. The other, yearning for finer things, opted for what was billed as a "deli roast" at $1.89 a pound. Both customers, unknowingly, wound up with the same cut of beef.

There are a lot of fancy names these days for different cuts of meat. In some places you can buy something labeled California roast, or Miami roast; in Detroit you can buy a clod steak, in Ohio a charcoal steak, in Minnesota a bread-and-butter steak. What are you buying? Who knows?

Or take the so-called "his-and-her steaks" found in meat counters here and there. One meat expert had this to say about them: "Most customers are familiar with the names, but if they go to another town, the his-and-her steak may come from the other end of the carcass."

The underlying point, illustrated over and over in a recent Associated Press story on the subject, is that at a time of high meat prices there are a lot of misleading labels in the meat department. There also are cases of

out and out fraud: packages of "chicken livers," for example, which actually contain much cheaper chicken hearts. But what concerns us particularly at the moment is the labeling which suggests something a bit more exotic — and carries a higher price per pound — than the package in truth contains.

This may be forgiven as mere salesmanship, so long as there's no price differential on the same cut variously labeled. Still, wouldn't it be better if butchers would identify the cut as what it is and let it go at that?

A WORD EDGEWISE...by John O. Roche

Le Watergate's reverberations

AIX-EN-PROVENCE, France — The headline in the local paper tells of the arrest of the former chief of the Marseilles police vice squad for taking a bribe from a classy brothel. Since all French reporting is "advocacy journalism," the writer has a field day, noting how for years this particular officer had prided himself on his morality, on being (so help me God) "a cop honest."

Now, as the broken man is led away in chains, the journalist is overjoyed — another phony saint brought down.

Then to the serious business: LeMonde — the French newspaper of record — where lo and behold we find the same scenario with a different cast of characters. "Le Watergate" has finally blown open, heads are rolling in Washington, President Nixon has done penance, and somehow or other even Daniel Ellsberg has gotten into the act. (The slogan of the Watergate troupe seems to have been "Have tools — will travel.")

Le Monde, in its own austere way, finds the whole affair confirming its long-standing conviction that the United States of America is a lunatic asylum run by the inmates.

I HAVE a basic loyalty to and faith in American political institutions and — perhaps for subjective reasons — cannot enjoy the spectacle of the President of the United States (any President) sitting in the dock admitting he had surrounded himself with men of no integrity. Yet the conjunction of the two stories — of the "cop honest" and "Le Watergate" — struck me as quite remarkable.

For over four years, and particularly since last November, we have been exposed to a torrent of pious rhetoric featuring the "work ethic" (which I refuse to blame on the Protestants) and denouncing the Kennedy-Johnson administrations for coddling the poor, funding boondoggles, and perhaps worst of all providing the American people with unrealistic expectations.

What the Watergate developments have done is utterly demolish the moralistic pretensions of the Nixon Administration, the carefully cultivated proposition that in defeating George McGovern, Richard Nixon received some sort of mandate from the American people to return to the "old virtues." After all, what right do the sponsors of CREEP and the Watergate have to criticize some whacker who took the Office of Economic Opportunity for a few thousand bucks? Hell, CREEP's couriers never seem to have traveled without a hundred thousand bucks in cash tucked in a suitcase. What did they do with all that green?

And when it comes to giving the American people unrealistic expectations, the sponsors of CREEP and the Watergate are unrivaled — at least since the era of President Warren G. Harding. Why, for example, should anyone want to work in a factory when he knows he could be sitting in a room in the Executive Office Building faking a State Department dossier on the murder of Diem?

Or that, with a little night school training in electronics, he can pick up a fat pack of hundred dollar bills for planting a bug? The vocation of burglar has been given a new respectability — it may even turn up as one of the categories in "Who's Who."

ALTHOUGH it must be obvious that I would get a certain grim satisfaction from seeing that bunch of moralistic fakirs at hard labor in striped suits, there is still an odd aspect about the whole affair, one that leads me to feel a sense of compassion toward the man, Richard Nixon.

You see, he really does believe in the "old virtues," the "work ethic," and the other values his praetorian guard have betrayed. It is inconceivable to me that he was aware of their schemes, which leads to the final irony: "Tricky Dick" delivered into the hands of his enemies as a consequence of over-trusting his associates!

There are authentic elements of Greek tragedy in the whole appalling business: now Mr. Nixon must learn to live with Nemesis.

The new classroom added to the Jasper School at Milledgeville was dedicated with a program at a meeting of the Parent-Teacher Organization. A flag was presented by Harry Biser. Edward Pell was the principal.

Rain, wind and hail lashed the county during a severe electrical storm. Fruit crops were endangered.

The Grand Ole Opry troop, featuring Grandpa Jones and his banjo, were booked for an appearance at the Fayette Theater.

Another survey was made by the Post Office Department with a view toward enlargement of the postal facilities here.

Consolidation of the New Holland and Atlanta schools was recommended by A. D. St. Clair, of the state Department of Education. St. Clair was a former superintendent of the Washington C.H. schools.

The standard fine for driving while drunk was increased from $150 to $200 by Judge Robert H. Sites.

FIFTY YEARS AGO

Officials of the National Fox Hunters Association came here from several states to make plans for the national field trials and bench show.

Five persons were in Fayette Hospital (Court and North Sts.) as the result of weekend automobile accidents.

First Building and Loan Association office was opened with many visitors. David S. Craig was the president. (This was a predecessor of the present First Federal Savings and Loan Association.)

A campaign to raise money for the YWCA got under way under leadership of Mrs. Austin F. Hopkins. The campaign had no dollars-and-cents goal. On the committee were Miss Edith Gardner, Mrs. Carrie B. Willis, Mrs. Val R. McCoy, Miss Vera Veal, Miss Lulu Rowan, Harry M. Daugherty, Henry Browell and M. E. Hitchcock.

Juanita Louise Hastings, 6 months, suffocated, and her mother was found unconscious in their burning home on Florence Street.

Councils of Washington C. H. and Bloomingburg approved gas rate increases.

Hal Boyle . . .

Bring back the horse

By ROBERT E. FORD
Associated Press Writer

Editor's Note: Hal Boyle is ill.

Haven't heard any ivory tower economists or hard-headed brokers speak of it yet, but it seems reasonable that if you have any stock in the buggy whip factory you'd better hold onto it. It may rise out of sight.

This is because of what is termed the "energy crisis" but which really is nothing but an acute case of the shorts in the oil and gas supply.

They're talking now about dollar-a-gallon gasoline, and when that comes, people may turn to horsepower again.

Most people's cars get about 12 to 14 miles to the gallon, no matter how much they lie about it. And a horse will walk that far for only 50 cents or so of oats by offhand estimate.

This could mean our streets will be filled with horses and buggies. If the environmentalists who are blocking the Alaska oil pipeline believe that will improve the ecology, they just don't understand horses.

The shortages already are here as survivors of this recent winter found.

It's so bad that a fellow we know built a second fireplace in his house and laid in a good supply of wood to let it cure before the gas and heating oil supplies are gone.

There are a fairly large number of persons who didn't know what gas heat was until they were grown men and women.

Some of these complained about central heat when it finally came. They just couldn't get warm unless they backed up to a fire.

Watch men today when they walk into a room with a fireplace.

Even if there hasn't been any fire there for years, they back up to it and hook an elbow over the mantle. It is an act built into their genes and chromosomes over countless centuries, just like breathing.

But man, it is a lot of work! It's much easier to flick the thermostat up a couple of degrees than to cut half a cord of wood a day.

Of course it's not that much work if you have a small boy to do the wood chopping for you.

There were some compensations.

This came on days when it was bitterly cold and the small boy's mother or grandmother decided to cook on the fireplace rather than start up the huge old cookstove in the kitchen.

Well, in no time at all the beans bubbled, the biscuits rose and browned, the ham sizzled, and there was the meal.

TV dinners aren't half the trouble.

They don't taste half as good, either, if memory serves properly.

Medical meeting eyes pollution

By TERESA C. PITTS

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Pollution and lung diseases and treatment of sports injuries were slated to be discussed Tuesday in seminars at the Ohio State Medical Convention.

Ohio Health Director John D. Cashman was to address a general session on quality medical care in government.

Fifty-four resolutions received delegates' attention Monday, including four dealing with abortion. The OSMA was to vote on the resolutions Wednesday.

Presbyterian Association plans meeting

Miss Elsie Gleason, recently retired after serving as a missionary in India, Nepal and Guatemala, will be guest speaker at 1:30 p.m. Thursday in the chapel in First Presbyterian Church. A tea will follow in the church parlor with Circle II, of the Women's Association, as hostess.

Miss Gleason is now living in Bristol Village, Waverly, and she will bring with her many pictures and articles made in the countries she has served for over 33 years.

The public is invited to attend the meeting.

Add a bay leaf, a few slices of onion, celery tops and lemon juice to tomato juice; cover and refrigerate overnight. Strain and serve.

Associate chapter, elects officers

New officers elected by the Associate chapter of Phi Beta Psi Sorority in the home of Mrs. Andrew Loudner Monday evening were Mrs. Cecil VanZant, president; Mrs. Ira Barchett, vice president; Mrs. Ed Volette, secretary; Mrs. A. B. McDonald, treasurer.

Mrs. John Sagar Sr. was welcomed as a new member by Mrs. Van Zant.

Assisting hostesses, who with Mrs. Loudner served a dessert course preceding the business session and an evening of bridge, were Mrs. M. Grove Davis, Miss Elizabeth McDonald, Mrs. L. F. Everhart and Mrs. Robert Jefferson.

A donation was made to the local Cancer Society. Cancer research, treatment and education form the sorority's national project.

Winners of bridge were Miss Helen Hudson, Mrs. Paul Pennington and Mrs. William Limes.

The group will hold a picnic in July, with the place yet to be selected. Committees for the fall meetings were named.

TO GRADUATE IN JUNE — Miss Connie Burns, daughter of Mrs. Margine Burns, of Jeffersonville, will be among the graduates June 14 from Community Hospital School of Nursing in Springfield. Miss Burns was a senior attendant at the crowning of the Queen at the annual spring formal held May 5 in the K of P Lodge in Springfield. A 1970 graduate of Miami Trace High School, she will be employed at Riverside Methodist Hospital in Columbus following graduation.

Strike by writers could end soon

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A settlement may be near in the nine-week-old Writers Guild strike that has brought large segments of the motion picture and television industries to a standstill. Industry sources said an agreement could be reached as early as this week.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

WEDNESDAY, MAY 9

ARIES (March 21 to April 20)
Continue to hold off any direction action. You can't expect clear-cut decisions from anyone now, but someone behind the scenes IS working in your interests.

TAURUS (April 21 to May 21)

Watch your budget. There are some who are enthusiastic about spending YOUR money. Pay no attention. You know your financial limitations.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21)

Certain situations may irk, but they MUST be handled calmly. At all costs, avoid anxiety and overemotionalism.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23)

A day calling for your best judgment. Don't take action in a tricky situation before you've heard the whole story, and DO try to see the viewpoint of associates.

LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23)

A day when your innate aggressiveness will pay off. Energy and drive will finally bring you some long-awaited cooperation.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23)

Keep eye open now. A crafty co-worker may try to shove HIS responsibilities on YOU. Don't let him!

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23)

Don't regard decisions made in the a.m. as final. Certain circumstances may necessitate revision later in the day.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 22)

Be cautious in dealing with associates. As with Taurus, some may urge you to make certain commitments against your better judgment. Don't let yourself be pressured.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21)

Home and family concerns under highly beneficial stars. In fact, a recent domestic problem will finally be straightened out satisfactorily.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)

You have good reason for optimism now. A superior's enthusiasm for your efforts not only pays off, but further spurs your ambition and incentive.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)

Staff changes could bring some extra chores, more responsibility, but don't be above picking another's brains for helpful guidance.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20)

Others may be overly aggressive, pressing for their "rights" to the exclusion of yours. Watch your own in-

Bush wants Nixon cash for party

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican party chairman George Bush says he wants to see President Nixon's re-election campaign dismantled and its money spent on helping GOP congressional candidates next year.

"These moneys were given to support the President," said Bush in an interview. "The best way to support him would be to gain control of one or another house of Congress."

His comments came after party officials said they feared a Wednesday fundraiser for the '74 election would meet only half of a $2 million goal.

He said he did not know the legalities of closing down the Committee to Re-elect the President, which is involved in lawsuits arising from the Watergate case.

Like his predecessor, Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas, Bush has been trying unsuccessfully to obtain for the party funds left over from the Nixon re-election campaign.

Bush said future Republican fund-raising efforts will be centralized under the new party treasurer, Nashville investment banker Pat Wilson, who reports directly to Bush.

Residues found in meat, poultry

U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) laboratories found 64 violative residues out of 3,385 samples of meat and poultry products tested during the first quarter of 1973.

A total of 18,400 tests were run on these samples, according to meat and poultry inspection officials of USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (APHIS).

USDA's residue survey is a continuing program that helps assure the wholesomeness of our food supply. When above-tolerance residues of antibiotics, growth promotants or other drugs are found, the test results, portions of the sample and the name and address of the owner of the animals or birds involved are turned over to the Food and Drug Administration. FDA has legal authority over animal feed additives and drugs.

TV Viewing

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — It's a safe bet that only a few graying ex-fliers and mechanics remember "The Foggy Follies." It played only twice and then only at a small Army Air Corps base in Italy during World War II.

It was a comedy revue. Its author and star was an obscure B17 radioman-gunner named Norman Lear. He's still writing comedy shows today, but earns a bit more than when he was a sergeant.

And he's no longer obscure. He and his partner, Bud Yorkin, gave American television "All in the Family," "Maude" and "Sanford and Son," all hit comedy series that shattered TV traditions right and left.

Lear doesn't look like a comedy writer, let alone an iconoclast. Jokes don't tumble out of him the way they do on his shows. He's a slight, soft-spoken guy who discusses almost everything seriously.

It's even more startling to realize that his life's ambition once was to be a New York publicity man, an occupation not exactly known for its seriousness except when the client won't pay off.

"That's all I ever wanted to be," said Lear, explaining that it stemmed from his Uncle Jack's munificence. The Lear family was poor, but Uncle Jack, a New York press agent, always seemed in the chips. When he visited the family, he always flipped quarters to the kids.

"Long before there was a depression, we had one going on both sides of my family," Lear said. "They didn't wait for the banks to close. And I never forgot those quarters from Uncle Jack."

After the war, Lear did in fact become a press agent — at a whopping $40 a week. He soon turned to writing comedy and made a success of it both in television and movies. He teamed with Yorkin in 1959.

He now does most of their talking, particularly when viewers angrily roar about controversial themes in their

Sen. Saxbe comments on energy shortage

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — U.S. Sen. William Saxbe, R-Ohio, Monday said that President Nixon's concern with foreign policy extends from the growing domestic energy crisis.

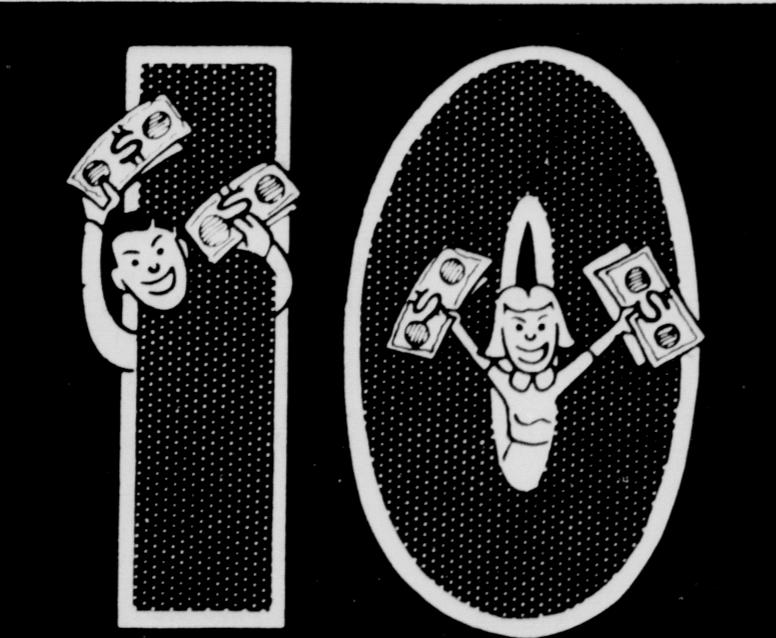

The United States is importing about a third of its oil from other countries, mostly from the Middle East, Saxbe said at a Rotary Club meeting.

Veterans keep a tradition

Memorial Day parade here set for May 30

The annual Memorial Day parade in Washington C.H. will be held Wednesday, May 30, the date on which, traditionally, the nation has paid tribute to those who served their country in time of war.

Representatives of Paul H. Hughey and Homer Lawson posts of the American Legion, Burnett Ducey Post of Veterans of Foreign Wars and Fayette County Barracks of Veterans of World War I got together and agreed to maintain a tradition of many years and hold the parade and other observances on May 30 and not go along with the change to Monday, May 28, approved by Congress to provide a longer weekend holiday.

They took a similar stand on the change from the traditional observance of Veterans Day on Nov. 11 to a weekend to provide the longer holiday.

The veterans organizations' representatives, however, were compelled to make one change. Since the schools will still be in session on May 30, the parade will be held in the evening instead of in the morning as in the past. In the past schools were dismissed on Memorial Day.

GO GO BAKERS, MAKERS

The meeting of the Go Go Bakers and Makers 4-H Club was called to order by Mrs. David Coppock, assistant leader. She suggested that new officers be elected. Dianna Stackhouse was elected president; Vickie Lane, vice president; Rosemary O'Flynn, secretary; Juanita McClain, treasurer; Kathy Thompson, scribe; and Jackie Stackhouse, recreation leader.

Mrs. Coppock also gave the 4-H project books to members. Among them were sewing, cooking and chipping. Janet Penwell volunteered to bring refreshments for the next meeting at 4 p.m. May 15.

The enrollment for the new year was 16, of which seven were not present on May 1. Mrs. Stackhouse, the leader, was not present.

SILLY STITCHERS 4-H

The meeting of the Silly Stitchers 4-H Club was brought to order by Deneen Steen, president, who also led the Pledge of Allegiance. Trisha Dennewitz led the 4-H Pledge.

Members answered roll call by the name of their boyfriends. All were present. Trisha Dennewitz read minutes of the previous meeting and Nika Robinson made the treasurer's report.

Nila Lucas gave a health report on "Care of Ears". Lana Robinett gave a safety report on "Household Safety."

Members were asked to keep newspaper clippings of accidents that occur in Fayette County, and ideas were discussed for a spring bake sale.

A demonstration was made by Nancy Farmer on "How to Thread a Needle." Crystal Cave moved for adjournment and Nancy Farmer seconded it.

The work session was for pinning and sewing material. Nikka Robinson served refreshments. The next meeting will be May 8.

Armco aids Good Hope, Senior Citizens

The Little League baseball park at Good Hope has a new dugout for players, and the Senior Citizens Center in Washington C. H. has two new sewing machines and a new portable dish washer.

They are the gifts of the employees at the Armco plant here as part of their annual observance of Founder's Day.

The employees contributed nearly $1,000 for this year's project, which was divided between the Little League and Senior Citizens. In addition to the voluntary contributions of money, employees erected the dugout which is made of Armco steel panels and frames produced at the plant here.

Each year, the employees contribute time and money to some project to commemorate Founder's Day.

Joe Dietrick was chairman of the Founder's Day project this year. Other members of the committee were Duane Scheeler, Jim Conley, Donald Robinson, Albert Donahue, Carey Butcher, Glen Jette, Shirley Moats, Mary Chinn and Chester Maple.

Delta Queen backers seek exemption

NEW RICHMOND, Ohio (AP)—New Richmon may not be a port of call for the famed Ohio riverboat Delta Queen, but its residents and others in Clermont County don't want her ruled off the inland waterways.

Bobby Lees, New Richmon zoning engineer, has started circulating petitions to Congress and President Nixon to have the Delta Queen given another exemption from provisions of the federal safety at sea law.

The Queen, last sternwheeler steamboat used for overnight cruises on inland waterways, now is operating under an exemption, but the exemption is scheduled to expire at the end of the current cruise season.

The petitions being circulated here claim the Delta Queen never should have been "classified with ocean-going vessels" and that she has a "perfect safety record."

Although the Delta Queen doesn't make stops here she has a New Richmon connection. Her captain, Earnest Wagner, lives here and the Queen usually gives a calliope salute to New Richmon when she passes.

The boat plies the Ohio, Mississippi and Kentucky rivers on cruises from her home base in Cincinnati.

Processed food theory punctured

By JOHN CUNIFFE

AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—Here are some observations that might change some of your pet theories.

—One of the common explanations for higher food prices is that Americans are seeking greater amounts of processed foods in order to save time in the kitchen and perhaps even to serve a tastier meal.

When we buy raw foods and prepare them at home we expend a certain amount of time and effort. We must call on skills developed over the years, skills for which we don't ordinarily charge the family.

But when we buy foods that are partially or fully prepared, we must pay for the time and artistry of the factory cook. We generally conclude that such a bargain is fair enough, especially in this day of working wives.

But a check of retail food prices in at least one area, New York-northeastern New Jersey, shows that the rise in the prices of some processed foods is much smaller than for the raw products.

Kentucky fugitive held at Norwalk

NORWALK, Ohio (AP)—The FBI says Jammie Donald Bowman, wanted on a murder charge in Kentucky for allegedly killing his wife, was arrested Monday in Norwalk, Ohio, where he had been living under an alias.

Frederick C. Fehl, special agent in charge of the FBI's Cleveland office, said the 42-year-old Bowman has been a fugitive since August, 1970, and had been working as a painter in Norwalk. Bowman was arrested by FBI agents and Norwalk police.

Fehl said Bowman also was charged with shooting and wounding his mother-in-law.

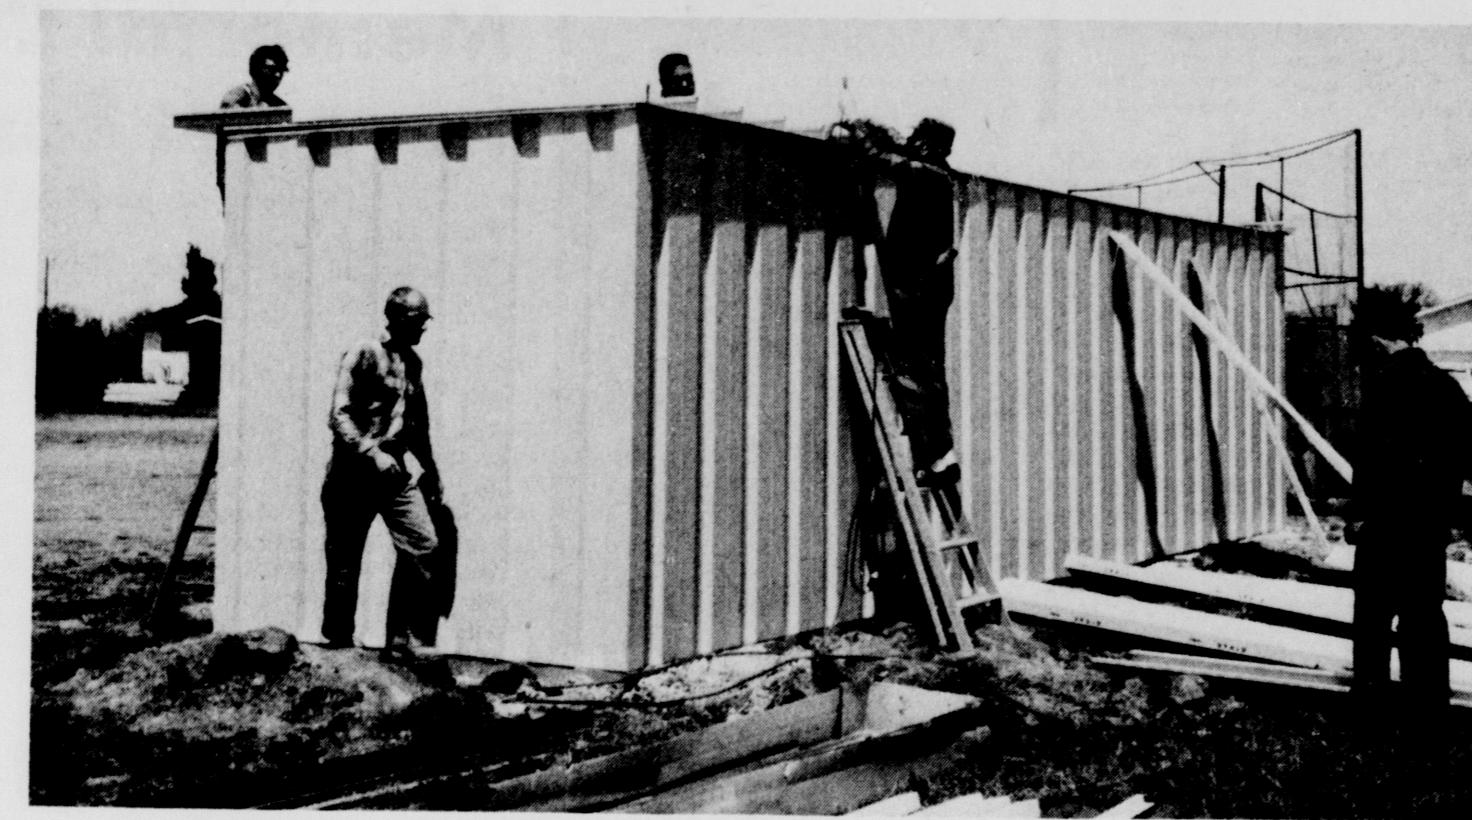

Bowman is to be turned over to local authorities for return to Kentucky, the FBI said.

Toledo police continue sick call

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP)—Police continued to call in sick Monday night in what appeared to be action taken because negotiators failed to reach agreement on a new contract.

Police began the apparent sick out Sunday night, but spokesman for the patrolmen's association and the Fraternal Order of Police declined comment on the action Monday.

City officials reported that 28 police districts in the city were being covered during the day, although only 45 of the scheduled 145 patrolmen reported for work on the morning shift. On the 3 p.m. to 11 p.m. shift only 11 of the 104 scheduled to work showed up and on the 11 p.m. to 7 a.m. shift only seven of a usual 64 reported for work.

The officers' contract with the city expired Dec. 31. Last week negotiations broke down, and a labor-management citizens committee was named to mediate the disagreement.

City council had a regularly-scheduled meeting this morning, and police reportedly planned to show up to express their concerns.

No negotiating sessions have been scheduled, however.

City Manager James Daken said the city will "just have to adjust to the strike and hope they get off it soon."

Spokesmen said police negotiators appeared to be satisfied with the wage offer made, but wanted a number of allowances and fringe benefits. The city offered a 1.1 per cent pay increase, retroactive to Jan. 1 and a per cent hike July 1.

Record income year for farmers seen

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department, reviewing the first three months of 1973, says that the economic evidence available points to a record income year for farmers despite uncertainties over weather and spring crop plantings.

During the January-March quarter, the Outlook and Situation Board said Monday, farm prices rose to record levels and indicated a net farm income rate of $22 billion. Prices are expected to recede somewhat later on, but income still is expected to be a record $21 billion.

"Both crop and livestock products face exceptionally strong consumer demand, and farm prices likely will ease only slightly by midyear," the report said.

Looking ahead, the experts said that supplies of livestock and grain are expected to expand during the second half of the year to record levels.

"The greatest uncertainty is the weather, particularly its impact on the feed grain-soybean production expansion which has been encouraged by the government," the report said.

"Although the expanded farm production should find ready domestic and foreign markets, prices are expected to ease by year end. For the year, farm prices average well above 1972 levels."

The report, a summary of one to be issued later this month, said that the general economy of the country speeded up "at such a rapid rate in the first quarter that gears of inflation have been rekindled in consumers and businessmen alike" despite restraints on federal spending.

Exports of farm products in the first nine months of the fiscal year began last July 1 totaled a record $8.9 billion, 49 per cent more than a year earlier, the report said. About three-fifths of increase was attributed to higher prices for grain products.

In capsule summaries, the report included these outlook views:

—Cattle on feed are more numerous in weight groups that typically supply the bulk of spring and summer marketings than they were a year ago. Prices in late spring and early summer probably will remain below the peak prices of last March.

—Hog slaughter will be near year-earlier levels this spring but will exceed them in the summer and fall. Prices will probably remain above a year earlier until the fourth quarter.

—Broiler chicken output may exceed last year's levels in late summer or fall, although uncertainty over feed costs clouds the picture. Prices will remain strong in the spring and summer but may decline from current levels.

—Egg prices will remain sharply above the low levels of 1972 for most of the year. Output will continue below 1972 levels but may equal last year's output toward the end of 1973.

—Turkey production will be up

Ohioan called turn on Watergate

By PERRY SMITH
Associated Press Writer
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — One Ohio Democrat can say, "I told you so" about the Watergate scandal and show proof.

William L. Coleman of Marysville, former state Democratic chairman, called the turn about the break-in of Democratic national headquarters last November.

His prediction came in a letter to John Connolly, chairman of Democrats for Nixon.

He accused the Texas Democrat of doing "a great injustice" to the two-party system.

"More important, however," he wrote, "is the fact you are supporting an administration which had apparently become so corrupt that 'Teapot Dome' will look like a Sunday School party in comparison when history is written."

Coleman suggested that the former

WAPAKONETA, Ohio (AP) — A 55-year-old woman and a 25-year-old man were killed in a head-on collision on Ohio 67 east of Uniopolis in Auglaize County Monday night.

Police identified the victims as Louise W. Zimmerman of Harrod in Allen County and John R. Howald of Wapakoneta.

Police said both were driving their cars around a curve in the road.

Texas governor should change from Democrat to Republican by resigning from the party at the time, rather than wait until after the election.

He even enclosed a resignation form for Connolly to sign.

Coleman has not been alone in mentioning Watergate and Teapot Dome in the same breath. Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., did the same thing.

John Ledingham, public relations director for Atty. Gen. William J. Brown, complains that his latest memo wasn't leaked to newsmen.

For some days Ledingham has been wriggling over a memo he put out to department heads telling them how to handle newsmen. The memo instructed staff members always to have their secretaries say they were "in conference" when a newsman called. This, he said, would give him time to check out what the newsmen was calling about.

The second memo, said Ledingham, ran only three words: "Ignore previous memos."

Over in a corner of a downtown working place for legislators and statehouse employees, a couple of lobbyists wondered if they might be included.

"I don't know why not," said one. "Alcoholism is considered a disease, and it's as much a hazard to our trade as blacklung to the miners."

If and when Chief Justice C. William O'Neill bows out of Ohio's Supreme Court, a justice just back on the high court figures to be his successor.

Paul Brown just won back his old seat on the Supreme Court last November after a three-year absence in which he served as Attorney General and ran unsuccessfully for the Republican nomination as governor.

Ohio's Constitution says the chief justice should be the justice with the longest service. It doesn't say continuous service, so Brown would be the man, although technically he is one of the newer members on the bench. The current term is his second.

Stingy Lions nudge Hartley in tourney

★★★ Mark Johnson hurls nifty three-hitter

Washington C.H.'s Blue Lions, behind a stingy defense and another fine pitching performance from junior Mark Johnson, blanked Columbus Bishop Hartley 2-1 Monday night in Central District Class AA sectional tournament action at the WSHS diamond.

Head coach Rodger Mickle's Blue Lions weathered Monday's rain showers and a strong challenge from the Columbus Catholic League team to register its second win in tourney play.

DiGregorio sparks U.S. cage victory

NEW YORK (AP) — Even in basketball, there's a place for the little man.

Ernie DiGregorio of Providence, the littlest man on the floor, proved it Monday night as he sparked the U.S. squad to an 89-80 overtime victory over the touring Russian National basketball team before 15,734 at Madison Square Garden.

"Ernie sure got us going when we needed it, didn't he?" praised U.S. Coach Bob Cousy, a pretty fair little man in his own right. "He picked us up when we were in trouble, big trouble."

Ernie D. sank a pair of baskets in the final minute of regulation play to erase a 73-69 Russian lead, hit two baskets in overtime and set up two more to put the Americans out ahead, then stymied the Russians with his artful dribbling and ballhandling.

"As I've said before, Ernie is the best player—pound for pound—that I've seen in college this year. Some of the things he does are just amazing."

The Russian coach, Vladimir Kandashin, was equally impressed.

"If we had him, we wouldn't lose any games," Kandashin said.

From the time he re-entered the game, with 2:08 to go in regulation, up until the finish, Ernie D. was the whole show.

"At the end I felt I had to take over—and I did," said the six-foot All-American. That he did. His shooting was deadly, his passing brilliantly accurate, his dribbling dazzlingly deft.

In the overtime, with the U.S. squad safely in front, he ran circles around the Russians as they tried to take the ball away from him. None could catch him.

MT absorbs third setback of season

A five-run eruption in the fifth inning carried Greenfield McClain to a 7-4 victory over Miami Trace Monday in a meaningless South Central Ohio League game on the Tiger diamond.

Head coach Dave Pelliott's Panthers, who have clinched at least a share of this year's SCOL championship, bunched together four runs at the end of the third inning, but Greenfield scored a pair in the fourth and then exploded for five runs on six hits in the fifth to seal the win.

It was the third loss in 10 outings this spring for Miami Trace, which finished the abbreviated SCOL schedule with a 4-1 chart.

MT's reserves cop fifth win

Miami Trace's reserve baseball team picked up its fifth win of the season Monday night by popping Greenfield 12-3 at the MTHS diamond.

Kevin Dunn twirled a one-hitter for Miami Trace in the game which was called after five innings because of darkness.

Freshman Allen Conner had two hits in two trips and also scored a pair of runs while P. R. Marshall belted his fifth double of the season. Mark Spears and Greg Cobb had doubles for the Panthers.

Miami Trace, now 5-0-1, will travel to Circleville for a doubleheader Saturday.

T. G. Knight wins feature

LEBANON, Ohio (AP) — T. G. Knight, came from four lengths behind Monday night to win the featured conditional pace at Lebanon Raceway.

T. G. Knight, owned by Edmund W. Creelman of Lebanon, covered the mile in 2:05.45 and paid $3.40, $2.60 and $2.40. It was his second victory in seven starts this year.

Reed's Pence, which led most of the way, finished second and paid $4.80 and $3.00. Third place finisher, Limber Legs, paid $2.40.

The daily double paid $131.00 with Rumpus winning the first race and Mr. Fisherman the second.

for Washington C.H. which has permitted opposing teams a meager three runs in the last 25 innings of action.

The win sends the streaking Washington C.H. team into action Thursday night against South Central Ohio League Rival Circleville. The game will be played at 4:30 p.m. Thursday at the WSHS diamond.

Johnson turned in another sparkling performance on the mound, junior second sacker Dave Rittenhouse supplied plenty of offensive fireworks for the Blue Lions who have now posted three straight victories.

Rittenhouse knocked in the tying run in the fourth inning and later scored the winning tally with two outs in the bottom of the sixth frame. He had two hits in two appearances at the plate against the Hawks.

Johnson, a spunky righthander who has posted victories in his last two outings, handcuffed Bishop Hartley on a mere three hits. He whiffed 10 hitters and issued two free passes. Johnson, in his last two outings of 18 innings, has allowed opposing teams only three runs.

Joe Karpowicz was tagged with the loss for Bishop Hartley, which was sidelined from the sectional tournament with a 6-4 all games record. Karpowicz hurled six innings, allowing two runs on five hits. He fanned eight and walked four.

SENIOR MIKE Domenico turned in a fine defensive effort from his catching position and Jeff Wallace had a timely hit and played a fine defensive game in centerfield.

The teams locked horns in a scoreless duel for three innings before Bishop Hartley plated a run in the top of the fourth inning. Washington C.H. rebounded as Alan Coppock doubled and scored on a single by Rittenhouse with two outs.

In the sixth inning Washington C.H. pushed across one run on the basis of three hits. Rittenhouse singled and after advancing to third scored on a bunt by Wallace after two outs.

Phone book deliveries announced

Delivery of Ohio Bell's 1973-74 Washington C. H. telephone directories will begin Friday, according to Bruce Galloway, commercial manager for the phone company.

About 14,000 copies of the new book will be distributed door to door in Washington C. H. and nearby communities by special carriers. All subscribers in the area should have their new books by May 17, Galloway said.

Small personal directories will be delivered along with the regular telephone directories this year, Galloway noted. The book has spaces for personal listings of names, addresses and phone numbers. It is narrow enough to be slipped between the foot posts under a standard desk telephone.

The book also contains some helpful hints on how to save on long distance calls. Additional copies of the personal directory can be picked up at the Ohio Bell business office, 334 E. Court St.

THE COVER of the book this year features a red and yellow stylized photograph, "Wild Geese in Flight." The book contains 40 white pages and 100 yellow pages.

Fire, police and other emergency numbers are listed on the inside front cover. General information on telephone service and equipment will be found on the pages preceding the alphabetical listings.

The eight-page blue section contains a brief history of Washington C. H., along with civic information, a city map and points of interest.

The section is also a handy reference for traffic safety tips, postal information and zip codes.

Minor loss listed

in two-car accident

City police investigated a minor two-car accident in the 200 block of S. Hinde Street at 9:17 a.m. Monday.

Officers said a car driven by Gertie E. Randolph, 54, of 703 Yeoman St., was pulling into a parking space and bumped the right rear fender of a parked car owned by Howard L. Derring, 1027 S. Main St.

There was slight damage to both cars.

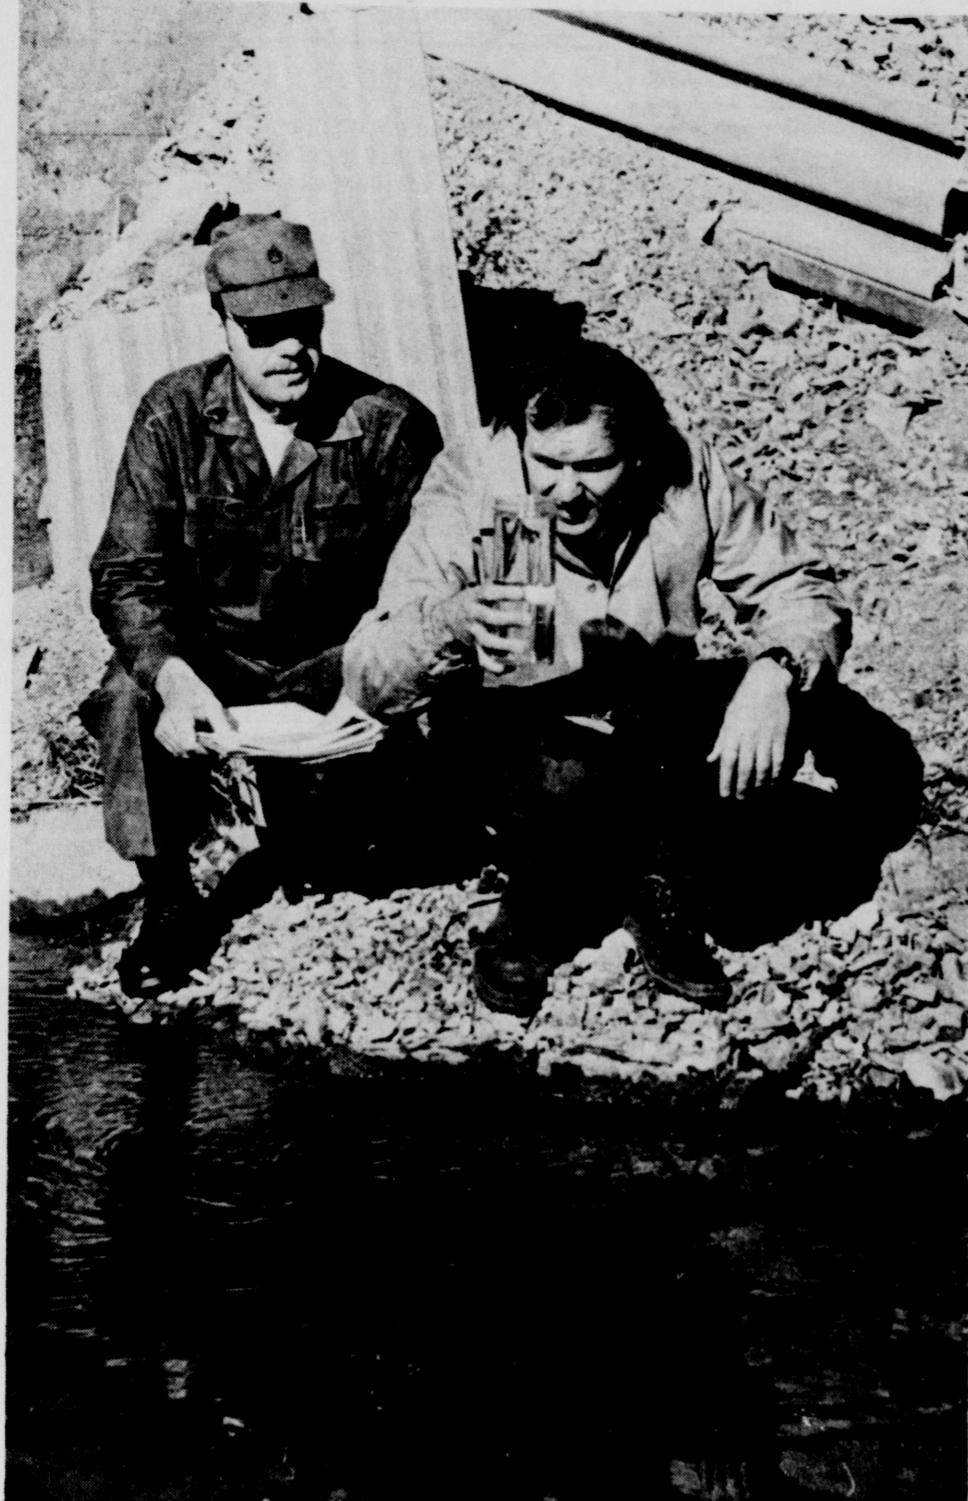

Octa Council OKs

alley improvement

Octa — Village Council gave the go-ahead signal to an alley improvement project at its regular monthly meeting Monday night. Mayor P. W. Goekenbarger was delegated to contact suppliers of limestone and award the job on the basis of the most favorable price.

Only other business was the payment of current bills.

Theft, vandalism cases reported in city, county

Three minor theft and vandalism incidents were investigated by local law enforcement agencies Monday.

A spare tire and chain were stolen from a semi-rig parked along Biddle Boulevard, in Bloomingburg Sunday night. Roy Dudley, owner of the rig, set the loss at $80.

The air hoses on two semi-rigs parked on the Cudahy Co. lot, 532 Dayton Ave., were cut Monday evening. Virgil Martin, Bloomingburg, driver of one of the rigs, discovered the cut hose on his rig about 10 p.m. He checked the airhorn on the other rig parked near his and found it had also been severed.

Police are investigating the incident.

The windshield of a car owned by Clarence Fitch, Bloomingburg, was shot out during the past two days. Sheriff's deputies said the windshield had been hit twice with pellets from an air rifle. The car was parked in a garage at the rear of the residence at the time.

Prayer breakfast series near end for school year

Ninety students and teachers attended the weekly prayer breakfast Tuesday at the South Side Church of Christ. This was one of the biggest turnouts in a long time and it included a group of 18 members of the WSHS Hi-Y Club who came in a body.

The WSHS head football coach, Maurice Pfeifer, conducted the devotional on the theme "Fighting with Love." Michelle Davis, a WJHS freshman, led the singing with Linda Hollingsworth, also a WSHS freshman, was the accompanist.

The final prayer breakfast of the school year will be next Tuesday morning, but plans are in the making for resuming weekly meetings next fall, according to the Rev. Charles J. Richmond, the pastor and originator of the prayer breakfast series here. Students now in the eighth grade and will enter junior high school in September, are invited to join the junior and senior high school students of both the city and Miami Trace district next Tuesday, the Rev. Mr. Richmond said.

Oscar Wilde play scheduled at WC

WILMINGTON — The Wilmington College Theatre Department will present its version of Oscar Wilde's "The Importance of Being Earnest" in Boyd Auditorium on the Wilmington campus Thursday through Saturday at 8:30 p.m. Kathy Eckstrand, of Xenia, and Wayne Dunn, of Lebanon, will play the lead roles.

The play is being directed by Robert Jones, assistant professor of theatre at Wilmington, who was a professional actor in Cincinnati for four years before he joined the college faculty in 1969.

Tickets for the production will be available at the door.

'Measure' Chillicothe highway

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Are you one of those motorists who fusses and fumes from the jolting your car gets as it passes over rough joints on the highway?

If you are, University of Cincinnati researchers are trying to do something about it.

7 Goodrich plants struck; URW talks are broken off

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Negotiations between the United Rubber Workers Union and the B.F. Goodrich Co. broke off early today without agreement on a new contract and with URW members on strike at seven Goodrich plants across the country.

A company spokesman said no time had been set for resumption of negotiations.

The URW ordered their 10,450 members employed by Goodrich on strike at midnight.

One exception was the firm's largest plant with 3,200 employees at Akron, Ohio, where picket lines were set up at 10 p.m. (EDT).

Strikes were also ordered against plants in Marion, Ohio; Miami, Okla.; Tuscaloosa, Ala.; Oaks, Pa.; Fort

Connally not

back in cabinet

WASHINGTON (AP) — A meeting between President Nixon and Republican convert John B. Connally has not returned Connally to the Nixon Cabinet. At least at this time.

Nixon apparently sounded out the former secretary of the Treasury about taking a new assignment during a session Monday at the Florida White House in Key Biscayne.

But Connally was understood to have no interest in the only Cabinet-level post, now open, that of Secretary of Defense.

If the former Texas governor does rejoin the administration he is expected to serve only on an interim or a part-time basis.

Nixon and Connally, close both personally and politically, met for more than two hours shortly before Nixon left Florida for Washington after a long weekend stay. The new White House staff chief, Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr., participated in part of the meeting.

Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said only that Nixon and his visitor discussed "matters in general, including some of the President's thinking about ongoing operations of Government."

Ziegler had said earlier the President is devoting much of his attention to restructuring his White House staff, shattered at the top by the Watergate-related resignations last week of Chief of Staff H.R. Haldeman and domestic policy coordinator John D. Ehrlichman.

Minkarah said, "the expansion joints are where the highway pavement always starts to break up. About 80 cents of every highway maintenance dollar is spent on repairing the joints."

The two professors say they expect to know the highway section "inside and out" by the end of the first year of study, late this summer.

Funds already have been allocated for a second year, with the Ohio Department of Transportation providing $25,000 a year.

Variables that affect the joints have been isolated by dividing the highway into ten sections. Each section contains ten joints.

In one section, for example, the joints have a different subbase. Other variations include length of spacing, types of dowels, width of openings, configurations of joint openings and joints that are skewed at different angles.

Horizontal movement of the joints is measured monthly with a specially-built, hand gauge and daily by battery-powered transducers mounted on the side of the pavement.

A transducer works like a TV volume control, transmitting variations in electrical resistance to a recording device.

Minkarah and Cook now plan to begin measuring vertical movement of the roadway. The vertical movement "is what really beats you up" said Cook.

He added that when vertical movement becomes excessive is "when it starts causing people trouble."

Cook said the research team hopes to come up with "better and safer pavement" in another year or so.

"Hopefully," he added, "that pavement will also be more maintenance-free."

Opening lead - two of spades.
Let's say you're in three notrump and win the spade lead with the ace. There is a question of how to play the hand, one possibility being to cash the ace of clubs, enter dummy with a diamond, and try a club finesse.

The danger is that the finesse may fail, in which case you would automatically go down after a spade continuation. You would lose three spades, a club and a heart.

Another possibility is to lead a low heart to the queen at trick two. This would lose to East's ace, as expected, and back would come a spade. You would now be able to make the contract if the opponents' hearts were divided 3-3 or if the club finesse succeeded. But, in the actual case, both chances would fail and this time you would finish down two.

However, there is still another way of playing the hand and this, considering the bidding, is the proper plan to adopt. It is based on the virtual certainty that East, for this overall, has the ace of hearts, and once this is conceded the contract is absolutely unstoppable.

At trick two you enter dummy with a diamond and lead a low heart back. This play presents East with a tantalizing dilemma. If he goes up with the ace, you have nine tricks without a finesse - three hearts, two spades, two diamonds and two clubs.

If he doesn't go up, you win with the jack and speedily abandon the suit, shifting to the A-K and another club. This also produces nine tricks, namely, four clubs, two spades, a heart and two diamonds.

All roads lead to Rome.

Speaking of Your Health...

What 'Dropped Stomach' Does

I weigh less than 100 pounds and have been told that I have a dropped stomach.

Can this be responsible for the gall bladder attacks that have plagued me for most of my adult life?

Mrs. J. M., Utah

Dear Mrs. M.:

At the turn of the century the term "dropped stomach" seemed to have caught the imagination of a great many people. It was used almost indiscriminately at that time.

Today is recognized that in some people the stomach does drop from its normal position. This occurs in delicate, thin people and may cause digestive disturbances and interfere with the normal emptying of the stomach.

The gall bladder, which stores bile

for the purpose of digestion, sends it to the intestine through a thin tube. Since this tube enters the small intestine at the point where the intestine and the stomach join, it is conceivable that a "dropped stomach" may interfere with this mechanism.

When medical treatment and regulation of diet are not effective, surgery is sometimes advised to replace and keep the stomach in proper position.

Is there any value to hormone creams and ointments for the return of hair in cases of baldness?

Mr. H. G., Calif.

Dear Mr. G.:

I believe it is generally accepted that the use of male sex hormone, or "testosterone," for baldness has been totally discredited.

The original enthusiasm was understandable, but health officials have warned against incorporating these hormones in cosmetics.

In essence, they are drugs that should be used only by prescription and under the direction of the doctor. These hormone creams are absorbed through the skin and may produce unusual side effects.

It is important that women, too, understand that these same side effects can occur when hormones are used as facial creams and "rejuvenators."

During the past few years the tips of my fingers have become thickened to almost twice their normal size.

I am in good health and am concerned about this strange condition.

Mr. T. T. G., Ark.

Dear Mr. G.:

The condition you describe is referred to as "clubbing" of the fingers. Swelling and rounding of the tips of the fingers are often associated with people who have chronic lung conditions.

Bronchitis, emphysema, and bronchiectasis of long standing may be responsible.

The same condition has been noted in children and adults who were born with some form of congenital heart disease.

It is important that you should follow through and be completely checked to find the exact reason for the clubbing of your fingers.

Service Notes

Caribbean bound

Many years ago the United States was invaded by millions of one-eyed monsters that took over the living rooms of our homes and set new rules for our way of living, of thinking, yes, even the foods we eat and the shampoo we use on our hair. Television also changed our hobbies. Those who had been spending three nights a week in the darkroom were now involved in TV wrestling. Now there seems to be a migration back to the dark room. But when these characters leave the tube and go back they find there are many changes. The darkroom is now called the PHOTOLAB. And in that photolab there are wonderful new chemicals that were unheard of before TV. And the new photographic papers! There is still much fun in the photolab, but now we must think in terms of the new compensating developers, and the new papers like some of the new Agfa papers that give us far better blacks and better whites than anything on the market a few years ago. In our own darkroom, sorry, I mean photolab, we switched to Agfa paper about three years ago. Quality.

By the way, do you know why the term photolab has replaced darkroom? People in the industry felt that the idea of a darkroom might frighten people since it had a sort of diabolical connotation. "Come with me to the photolab" seems a little less suggestive than, "Come with me to the darkroom." Anyway, building a photolab in your home is again the popular thing to do, and more and more people are rediscovering the fun of developing, printing and enlarging.

City School Board OKs improvements

Building improvements for Washington Senior High School were discussed and approved by the City Board of Education Monday night.

Improvements deemed justified by the board are additional venting for the boiler room, which was suggested by the state fire marshal, a doorway for access to the clinic from the counselors' office, and two air conditioning units for the office area.

Superintendent Edwin M. Nestor brought up the increasing need for a sidewalk at East Side Elementary School, and this is scheduled for the summer months, along with other system-wide maintenance.

James Harter's present work as temporary custodian at Rose Elementary was reviewed, and he will be offered a one-year contract.

It was noted that Washington Senior High met the complete approval of the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary schools, which, according to Nestor can almost always find something to suggest for improvement.

A NUMBER of requests for permission to attend job-related functions were approved: Miss Barbara Vance, home economics workshop; Austin Crisie and George Shoemaker; Hi-Y conference; Jon Cremer, an advanced study course in western civilization; and Thelma Elliot, a clerk's workshop.

Approval was also given to the Junior Naval Reserve Officers Training Corps Unit to visit Camp Perry this weekend through the courtesy of the National Guard.

American Legion Post 25 was granted permission to use the Senior High baseball diamond for their summer schedule, and the proposed

Fairground improvements

Improvement of facilities, opening ceremonies for the 1973 County Fair and review of policy for rental of the Mahan Building were among the items considered by the Fayette County Fair Board meeting Monday night.

The directors agreed to take bids and move ahead with major improvements on the Fairground which will cost approximately $5,000. The improvements will include installation of 1,000 foot of chain link fence along the north side of the grounds, installation of metal hub rail on part of the race track, repair and enlarging the race secretary's office, and a new hot water heater for the Mahan Building.

The expenditures for the fence and the hub rail will be the first steps in projects to be completed over a period of several years. It is anticipated that the board can install about one third of the hub rail on the track this year.

In other business, the board reviewed the policy for renting the Mahan Building. It was decided to leave the policy stand as is and to make no changes in rental procedures or rates.

The opening ceremony for the 1973 Fayette County Fair was discussed briefly. President Eddie Kirk asked Fair Board members to pass along any ideas for the opening to Junior Fair Board members who will be in charge of the activity.

The only other business included routine payment of bills and progress reports from committees.

MONEY DOES MATTER . . .

By David G. Looker

NO NEED TO GO AROUND IN CIRCLES . . .

Many folk too often misunderstand the real purpose of budgeting for personal money matters.

Establishing and operating a personal budget just doesn't have to be a spirit-breaking chore involving a lot of book work in recording every penny spent.

A personal budget for you or your family can be, should be, a simple plan - a few concise guidelines for organized spending and saving, planned ahead of time and not a list of expenditures set down afterwards.

Budgeting is the basis for arriving at sound, practical decisions in the use of your money. It is a guide for making the choices that will be the wisest in the light of your own circumstances.

Without a guide - a plan - one ends up going around in circles. A budget is simple route plan for getting somewhere.

Christian Science lecturer speaks

There is a Christian basis for contributing to the achievement of world peace, Miss Nancy E. Houston, a Christian Science lecturer, said in Washington C.H., Monday.

"To establish world peace," Miss Houston said, "is to have peace in our own consciousness — to be satisfied in God, good. As we establish a sense of completeness in our own lives, this multiplied all over the world will help interrelate the infinite variety of cultures, races and creeds."

Only as each person expands his thinking to help solve world problems will a better world be obtained, she maintained.

A Christian Science practitioner from Urbana, Ill., Miss Houston was in Washington C.H. as part of a nationwide speaking tour. She spoke in the church edifice, 504 E. Temple, under the auspices of First Church of Christ Scientist.

More than 70 attended the lecture which was entitled "Is Anybody at Home?"

Miss Houston explained how a spiritual view of home strengthens family relationships and builds a solid basis for world peace.

"Home is our mental environment," she said. "It's within us, here and now, then and there, everyday, everywhere and anywhere. It's the very core of our being."

Teamsters union opens pact talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Teamsters union begins negotiations Wednesday for wage and benefit increases above government guidelines but sharply below 1970's initial demands.

Informed sources said Teamsters President Frank E. Fitzsimmons will open the bargaining for a three-year contract with a package of demands including:

—Wage hikes of 50 cents an hour for each of the three years.

—A $3 increase in pension contributions currently averaging about $13 a week.

—A $3 hike in health and welfare payments, also running about $13 a week.

An unlimited cost of living escalator clause, plus an expensive package of new vacation schedules, holidays, sick leave and improvements in working conditions.

Fitzsimmons will present the package to Trucking Employers Inc., representing some 16,000 trucking operations and 400,000 truck drivers.

Congratulations to.....

Burnett-Ducey

Post installs new officers

Ben Jamison, 609 Leesburg Ave., was installed as commander of Burnett-Ducey Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, at the monthly meeting Monday night.

Russell Baker, installing officer, inducted the new slate of officers elected at last month's meeting. The 10 new officers will take office in July following the state convention.

Other officers installed were Kenneth Harley, senior vice commander; Chester Hamulak, junior vice commander; Walter Wilson, quartermaster; Hubert Ferneau, legislative officer; Bernard Witherpoon, service officer; Eldon Kirk, judge advocate; Richard Kirkpatrick, surgeon; Maurice Farmer, three-year trustee, and James Puckett, adjutant Harley, who had met with commanders of veterans organizations April 27, reported on that meeting, which had set plans for the Memorial Day observance in Washington C.H. May 30. He said the parade is to form at the Courthouse and proceed to Washington Cemetery where the program will be presented.

Plans for an observance at Highlawn Memory Gardens, west of Washington C.H., were completed. The observance will be held Sunday, May 27, and the Rev. Allen Puffenberger, associate pastor of Grace United Methodist Church, will be the speaker. The Rev. Elmer Burrall, pastor of Good Shepherd Lutheran Church, will deliver the invocation and benediction.

Sabina recreation program planned

SABINA — Village Council Monday night approved an allocation of $375 to Sabina Sports, Inc., an organization which provides a summer recreation program for the young people.

Although some of the activities are held in the small public park, most are on the school grounds.

Sam and Barbara Wilson and Faye Slagle asked Council to close an alley behind their property, but action was delayed, probably until the next meeting.

Condition of the streets after the winter and general plans for the usual summer maintenance program were discussed briefly and informally.

Commission transacts variety of business

'Mental Health Month' proclaimed

Fayette County commissioners, meeting Monday, proclaimed May as "Mental Health Month," heard a request by city officials to participate in the funding under the Emergency Employment Act and accepted a bid for the purchase of a brush chipper.

Commissioners also authorized County Engineer Charles P. Wagner to proceed with the replacement of a bridge on Edgefield Road.

City Manager Dan Wulford presented a request on behalf of the city for 75 percent of future funds received by the county for allocation under the Emergency Employment Act.

IN A LETTER to the commissioners, Wulford said that 75 percent of the original 1971 Fayette County grant was allocated to the Sheriff's Department. The remaining 25 percent went to the Fayette County Health Department for employment of additional personnel.

The letter also stated that the city was not informed of the availability of funds distributed under EEA to the county for allocation; therefore the city was not presented the opportunity to participate as a recipient of the funds.

Wulford pointed out that existing formulas allocating funds to local government jurisdiction generally take into account population, needs and other factors to determine an equitable allocation of available funds.

"The City of Washington considers its responsibility for the protection of persons and property in Fayette County, namely the corporation of Washington, and its significant concentration of persons, including business places, industry, bars and other potential trouble spots to be in excess of 60 percent of the total of the same non-municipal areas of Fayette County," Wulford said. He also pointed out that the City Police Department is

Regional Library Service explained to Kiwanis Club

The importance of the comprehensive library service provided by the South Western Ohio Regional Libraries (SWORL) was explained to the Kiwanis Club Monday night in Lafayette Inn by Miss Barbara Michael, the director.

She said that, while the service is available to such cities as Washington C.H. in this seven-county area, another of the principal functions of SWORL is the service to small towns and rural areas.

SWORL grew out of a need of small rural libraries for essential library service and the program was put into operation in 1963 with the help of federal funds, Miss Michael explained.

SWORL now serves seven counties: Fayette, Clinton, Warren, Highland, Clermont, Brown and Adams. It provides workshops and correspondence courses for librarians, cassettes, paperback books, records, hardback books, fiction, reference books and the all-important bookmobile.

Forsha pleaded not guilty to the charge.

Joseph W. Flowers, 52, Chillicothe, forfeited two bonds totaling $250 when he failed to appear on a pair of intoxication charges. Flowers was first arrested Friday afternoon when officers found him lying in the city parking lot beside the Emerald Inn. He posted $50 bond Saturday morning but was again arrested by police Saturday night when he created a disturbance at 902 Dayton Ave.

He posted $200 bond on the second complaint and was released. Flowers has been arrested on intoxication charges three times in the past two weeks.

Michael W. Johnson, 24, of 18 Myers Ct., forfeited $50 bond when he failed to appear on an intoxication complaint. Johnson was arrested early Friday when police discovered him passed out at a table at the Friendly Corner tavern.
